Rivals Debate Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—After much negotiation and argument between political camps and harassed network officials, the scene was set for the second "great debate" on television tonight. (See TV listings for time.)

And judging from their recent speeches, Vice-President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy, were likely to be appreciably more combative than they were in their first encounter.

UTMOST CARE

Because Nixon did not appear to his best physical advantage in the first debate, the vice-president's campaign associates approached tonight's show with utmost care and extensive preparation.

Broadcasting industry officials predicted tonight's audience would be even larger than for the first debate when an estimated 73.5 million viewers tuned in.

BETTER MAKEUP

Because of the large audience and the resultant political impact, representatives of both candidates seemed to be taking a much more intense interest in plans for tonight. The Nixon staff was determined that the vice-president would have the benefit of better makeup and lighting than on Sept. 26 when many viewers thought Nixon looked unwell.

FREE-LANCER

Nixon's makeup will be done by Stan Lawrence, a free-lance makeup expert from New York. The vice-president's makeup in Chicago was handled by Everett Hart, a TV producer working for the Nixon organization.

Kennedy used no makeup in Chicago and was not expected to do so tonight.

Car Drags Constable

VANCOUVER (CP)—An RCMP constable was dragged 200 feet by a stolen car Thursday, but escaped with only his uniform torn.

The constable approached the car when it stopped for a light in Burnaby, then grabbed the door post when the car began to move. He hung on until the car reached an estimated speed of 50 miles an hour before letting go.

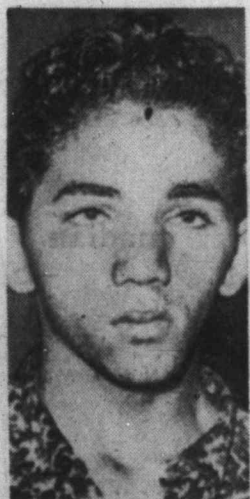

Smallpox Air Scare Starts Huge Probe

LONDON (AP)—International quarantine inspectors started investigations from Ceylon to Canada Thursday night after an airline passenger developed smallpox.

The ministry of health said the passenger, a Dutch businessman, was taken to a smallpox hospital near London Thursday two days after arriving from Ceylon. Between times he had visited London's Wormwood Scrubs prison and the whole jail was alerted to the danger.

SALVADOR AGRON

LUIS HERNANDEZ

Teen-Agers Sentenced To Death

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two teen-aged murderers, known as "the Cape Man" and the "Umbrella Man," were sentenced yesterday to die in Sing Sing prison's electric chair. They were among the youngest persons ever to face execution in New York State.

The killers, members of a street gang called the Vampires, terrorized New York's Hell's Kitchen area in a summer juvenile crime wave in 1959.

They are Salvador Agron, 16, the Cape Man, and Luis Hernandez, 17, the Umbrella Man.

The pair and four other street toughs attacked a group of youngsters in a playground Aug. 30, 1959, fatally stabbing two boys and wounding a third.

Agron was called Dracula and the Cape Man because he wore a red-lined cape and carried a foot-long Mexican dagger with a silver handle.

Health authorities in each of the countries the plane visited have been warned. The flight stopped at Bombay, Tehran, Istanbul and Rome. At least one of the passengers on board has gone to Winnipeg, BOAC said.

Vast Medical Stockpile Ready for Atomic Attack

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP)—Canada is stockpiling $18,000,000 worth of medical supplies and specially-designed "packaged" hospital and treatment centres in case of nuclear attack.

Dr. R. D. Hardman, chief of the emergency health services branch, federal health department, told Atlantic province mayors here Thursday that $11,000,000 worth of equipment and supplies are on hand. Another $7,000,000 is being spent on additional supplies.

He said 620 treatment centres and portable hospitals are being spotted across the country in every province for quick movement to evacuation areas in event of a nuclear attack.

Dr. Hardman, a medical doctor, said that should an attack come there would be hundreds of thousands of patients. Supplies must be on hand to save their lives. Most pharmaceutical companies were in target areas and would be destroyed in a nuclear attack. It was up to governments to make sure medicines would be available.

Dentists, veterinarians, laboratory technicians and other medical experts must be trained, he said, to help take the tremendous wartime loads off doctors by treating less serious casualties.

Neighborhoods would be provided with health haversacks equipped for minor care of people being evacuated.

The 200 packaged hospitals, especially boxed for long storage, will be shipped to schools, churches or other buildings for setting up in evacuation periods. Each will contain 200 beds, reception rooms and three operating rooms. They will have their own power and water supplies.

These will be augmented by 420 smaller advanced-treatment centres, available in 10 regional depots in every province by December. Eighteen model units now are available for training purposes.

Spread out across the provinces will be 1,200 packaged disaster units containing equipment and supplies to supplement hospital facilities.

A portable clothing sorting machine is being designed to handle rapid distribution of clothes, blankets and other covering equipment.

Legal Fight

Lawyer Banned From Own Home By RCMP Guard

REGINA (CP)—Dr. M. C. Shumiatcher, his house and law office guarded by the RCMP, agreed Thursday to move into a hotel while a court considers his motion to have two search warrants quashed.

The hearing will be held today. Meantime the court ordered nothing can be taken from the office or home and police moved in to see that the order is carried out.

The warrants were issued to search the law office of Shumiatcher, Moss and Laverty and the home of Shumiatcher, senior partner in the firm.

FAMOUS LAWYER

Dr. Shumiatcher faces 11 criminal charges arising from statements made in 1958 during investigations by the Saskatchewan Securities Commission into the dealings of two firms, Columbia Metals and Western Bond and Share.

Seven of the charges allege the lawyer counselled or procured certain people to give false evidence before the commission. Four others concern obstruction of justice, counselling a person to make false declarations and procuring certain persons to give false information to the commission.

WARRANTS QUASHED

Earlier Thursday Chief Justice Emmett Hall of Court of Queen's Bench quashed two search warrants which RCMP and commission investigators used Tuesday in an effort to get certain documents from the legal firm's offices.

During the night and Thursday, Dr. Shumiatcher and his partners were unable to use the office which was being used by RCMP and security investigators. Dr. Shumiatcher and his partners set up office, complete with secretaries, in the Regina court house.

ANOTHER WARRANT

However, immediately after the two warrants were quashed, the securities commission brought another two into play.

One concerned the lawyer's home and another the office. The RCMP moved into the premises again Thursday.

The warrants used Thursday were issued Wednesday by Magistrate L. F. Bence.

Dr. Shumiatcher is to appear in court Oct. 11 on the 11 criminal counts to be prosecuted by the SSC.

The hearing contesting the validity of the warrants resumed this morning when special prosecutor N. L. Mathews of Toronto is expected to be admitted to the Saskatchewan bar.

Holiday Dooms 35

OTTAWA (CP)—Thanks-giving weekend traffic in Canada will claim 35 lives, the Canadian Highway Safety Council forecast Thursday night.

If borne out, this would be one of the lowest fatality totals in years for the long October weekend. Last year 37 persons were killed on highways, compared with 52 in 1958 and 51 in 1957.

The forecast period covers the 78 hours from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday.

De Gaulle Scores UN

LA TOUR DU PIN, France (Reuters)—President de Gaulle warned Thursday night that France would not let anybody "force her hand" in Algeria and scored the United Nations as "a kind of permanent scandal."

The president said France did not help found the United Nations so that it should "degenerate into a kind of permanent scandal, with in-temperate speeches, absurd outbursts and bellicose dangers."

Summit Talks Likely After U.S. Election

Khrushchev Will Agree British Leader Thinks

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Thursday he believed Premier Khrushchev would agree to another Summit conference some time after the American presidential elections.

Macmillan conferred with Khrushchev for 1½ hours on the eve of his departure by air from New York Wednesday. He held a cabinet meeting shortly after his arrival Thursday afternoon, reporting in detail on his 10 days of talks inside and outside the United Nations.

Macmillan made these points to reporters at London Airport:

1. He is more hopeful about East-West relations than he was after the abortive Summit talks in Paris last May.
2. Khrushchev "overplayed his hand" at the UN General Assembly. "I do not think Mr. Khrushchev had it all his own way. He thought he would rather stampee the thing and pinch the whole show."
3. Britain, as leader of the Commonwealth, must stand firm. "It is no good our throwing away our weapons and running around in disorder."
4. East-West problems should be disentangled one by one through "patient negotiation."
5. It would be "a terrible mistake" to give in to Soviet pressure and make structural changes in the United Nations at this time. "Once you do that, the Russians would get the whole thing on the run."
6. Khrushchev's attack on UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld had been "a great failure."

OTTAWA (UPI)—The long-awaited cabinet shuffle, delayed by international affairs and the illness of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's mother, will take place Tuesday, Oct. 11.

The prime minister, who announced the date before entering a cabinet meeting Thursday, said the shuffle will be coupled with the appointment of a new lieutenant-governor for British Columbia. This all but confirmed persistent reports that Defence Minister George Pearkes would resign from the cabinet to accept the post.

Republic a Certainty For South Africans

Acceptance Issue Stalled Until May

OTTAWA (CP)—The decision on whether South Africa will—or can—remain in the Commonwealth probably will not be taken until May, giving both the Commonwealth and the country more than six months to adjust to its new republic status.

Canadian government officials said this waiting period may produce a change in South African racial policies, or at least the production of a formula whereby South Africa can remain associated with the Commonwealth in a new way.

PRIME MINISTER

... winner

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—South African nationalists Thursday night clinched their long battle to make the country a republic.

The South African Press Association said final figures from all 156 voting districts gave the republic a majority of 73,980 votes. The breakdown was 849,958 for and 775,978 against.

The last constituencies to be counted, all strongholds of nationalist Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd, assured the success of his plan for a republic.

The pro-republic forces shot into the lead Thursday night after overcoming an early lead of more than 150,000 votes held by anti-republic groups.

The foes of the move to make the country a republic had their main support among city-dwelling, English-speaking segments of the population, who voted early.

But once the results started coming in from the strongly-nationalistic, Afrikaans farming areas, the early anti-republic lead was quickly erased.

Are Sacred Cows Muzzling Canadians?

ST. ADELE, Que. (CP)—Sir Geoffrey Vickers, British social scientist, suggested Thursday night that Canadian and United States attitudes towards private enterprise are much like the Hindu attitudes to sacred cows.

He said freedom of speech, necessary to a democracy, does not exist in Canada and the U.S. as fully as in Great Britain.

Sir Geoffrey, chairman of the Mental Health Research Fund of Great Britain, told the Canadian Conference on Children it is possible in his country to discuss all problems, institutions, and topics without fear. That included discussion of communism and socialism.

Here, private enterprise and all that goes with it, including the assumption that private enterprise is separate from public responsibility, is "one of the untouchable orthodoxes."

"The sacred cows that need killing," he said, "are this idea that private enterprise needn't be socially responsible and the protection it has against criticism."

He said the situation was not as bad in Canada as in the U.S. but that the struggle between the West and Russia "has made any left-wing talk or strong criticism dangerously close to treachery in North America."

"You don't need secret police and concentration camps... if people get the idea it doesn't pay to talk about certain things," he said.

An acquaintance of his, an executive from one of Canada's western provinces, had refused to comment on international affairs for fear he would jeopardize his chances of promotion.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

SO the people have a choice between "free enterprise" and "socialism," have they? This idea was tossed around casually during the last provincial election campaign.

It is complete nonsense. I suspect that many of the people who talked about this alleged battle between the angels and the forces of darkness were aware that they were talking through their hats. Others succeeded in fooling themselves.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican candidate for vice-president of the United States, said on television recently that there was a place for both public and private enterprise in the American economy. And he is no left-winger.

Two of the real achievements of B.C.'s Social Credit government were completing the PGE railway and establishing the new ferry service. It is true that government and people showed wretched ingratitude to the Canadian Pacific Railway, whose railway and ships literally built this province.

There is a solid argument for saying that the government should not have created the ferry system at all. Nevertheless, the government did make a good ferry system.

The score has not yet been added up, but so far it looks as though the ferry system is a successful experiment in public ownership. A rabble-rouser might call it an experiment in socialism.

The CCF, like the Social Crediters, stand for a mixed economy, both private and public. The only difference is that the CCF wants more public ownership. It would try to take over the B.C. Electric, and set up a system of government car insurance.

Don't imagine that the trend is all one way, some of the things that we usually look upon as public business may move into private hands.

Victoria, for example, is reported to be considering the idea of a private-enterprise city hall, with stores on the ground floor and city floors upstairs. It isn't a new idea. Certain other towns have it.

What next? Two rival post offices, each one claiming in advertisements to be faster and more reliable than the other?

Such a system might work, for all I know. But for honesty's sake, we should get rid of the notion of "private enterprise versus socialism" as a battle between St. George and the dragon. (Decide which one is the dragon according to your own political views.)

In fact, the struggle is between two human factions who both have reasonable motives. The issue is not between black and white, but between light grey and dark grey.

Your Good Health

Many Causes Possible When Toenails Loosen

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a disease of the nails, onycholysis, on my big toe. The nail came nearly completely loose, yet did not shed. I have been treating it nightly with a mixture of olive oil and a mild lotion, but this doesn't help much. What do you advise? Mrs. E. W.

Diseases of the nails (and sometimes other parts of the human frame) sometimes have big names. So instead of relying too much on this being a specific disease, let's view it as a certain condition—and then consider what might cause it.

FUNGUS POSSIBLE

One possibility is psoriasis, which has happened to establish itself there. Fungus, or even some allergic condition, might be present. I will add for completeness, or for the sake of some other reader with a trouble similar to yours, that syphilis sometimes causes this. Naturally I do not imply such in your case, but I think it's just as well to face facts—this sort of trouble is only one of many later results when that disease is not treated promptly.

To go on, low thyroid activity (which now can be treated with effectiveness) is still another possibility. Or, when the nails of the hands rather than the toes are affected, contact with chemicals or other irritants has been tracked down as the cause.

So, you see, there are a variety of things that can cause a loosening of the nails such as you describe, and the answer is to determine which—not to try to find a remedy which fits the condition, whatever the cause.

Because of this aspect, I can understand why the olive oil and lotion might not help. Consequently, my suggestion is that you go to a dermatologist (specialist in skin diseases) for identification of the underlying cause.

And that brings up another point—when people have trouble with nails, they often wonder what type of specialist treats such problems. The answer is: For medical purposes, and with ample logic, the nails are regarded as a part of the "skin." They aren't skin, of course, but they are part of the outer covering of the body, and as such are part of that specialty in medicine.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I work in a store with fluorescent lights, and a low ceiling. I feel so tired. Is this lighting apt to take strength from the body? What do you say? —L.R."

I say no. But might the low ceiling cause poor circulation of fresh air? That's quite possible.

"Dear Dr. Molner: When a man who has had a serious heart attack and is recovering slowly, goes to a race track, will the excitement cause trouble, or can the heart remain calm? He claims he is not excited while watching a race. —T.Y.S."

Well, they have carried them out of race tracks, ball parks and football stadia. What he said about not being excited, and what is observed by someone watching him may be quite different. For that matter, it is possible for some people to suppress the outward signs of excitement (like a good poker player), but the tension is still there, even if it is bottled up inside. If this was a recent heart attack, I should lean toward avoiding such excitement. I have yet to see a betting race that does not cause some anxiety.

No Verdict After Trial On Passports

VANCOUVER (CP)—An assize court jury failed Thursday to reach a verdict in the trial of a lawyer and a Chinese barber charged with obtaining fake passports. The jury told Mr. Justice H. A. MacLean a verdict was not reached. The jury was taken to a hotel for the night and will reconvene today.

Charged as Vancouver lawyer George Edward Gordon and 72-year-old barber Sun Tong.

Neutrals Key in China Vote

Resentment Could Alter Picture

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Red China's claim for United Nations membership went before the 15th General Assembly Thursday night in an atmosphere of resentment and doubt resulting from the defeat of a neutralist plea for a new Summit meeting.

The Soviet Union's demand that Communist China be seated in the world body seemed headed for another defeat—as in former years—but Western diplomats watched anxiously to see whether the proposal would gain additional support from uncommitted countries.

Actually, the assembly merely was debating whether it should include the Red China issue on its agenda for formal debate later. The 98-member assembly's 21-member steering committee has already voted against it. A victory for the Communist side on this procedural matter—or even a close defeat—could be a major turning point.

In the background of the China discussion was defeat of a resolution introduced by five key neutral countries—including India—"hoping" for a renewal of Summit negotiations between President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Communist bloc delegates showed every sign of satisfaction that the proposal was defeated by Western action while they themselves abstained from voting.

Both Eisenhower and Khrushchev had discouraged the neutralist move but it was the U.S. rather than Russia which engineered the collapse on the floor of the assembly early Thursday.

The Summit-meeting proposal also brought sharp division among Commonwealth countries when India's Prime Minister Nehru and Prime Minister Menzies of Australia found themselves leading opposing sides.

U.S. diplomats were busier than at any time during the assembly sessions, explaining the American position to delegations from around the world. A Swedish diplomat said the U.S. may have won a battle in heading off the neutralists "but it may have lost the war."

Soviet delegates were jubilant.

No Feet Are Dragging

Martin Lashes Critics Over Hospital Wing

Health Minister Eric Martin last night hit back at critics who demanded an explanation for delays in start of construction of the new wing for Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Claiming there was no delay as far as the government was concerned, the minister said, "we are not going to stampede into passing shoddy work, nor is the hospital board in the first place going to approve shoddy work."

"Victoria and district is going to end up with a very fine hospital. But any attempt on the part of the trades union movement or others to hurry the process will lead to mistakes and inferior workmanship. Then we'll all have regrets."

ALMOST COMPLETE
Royal Jubilee Hospital administrator George Masters disclosed last night the working drawings are "almost completed" and said preliminary work is being carried out on schedule.

"It's frustrating for all of us," said Mr. Masters. "But we don't think the planning has been unduly delayed. We don't want another Memorial Arena on our hands and it is easier to correct mistakes now with a pencil than later with a hammer and saw."

The administrator said, however, preparation of working drawings has taken longer than anticipated. But he pointed out the wing has grown considerably with the addition of a whole new floor.

PRELIMINARY WORK
In the meantime, said Mr. Masters, preliminary work costing more than $100,000 has been carried out by Victoria firms employing local labor. This includes a new boiler, kitchen renovations, new quarters for internes, a new parking lot and telephone exchange.

Charges by Victoria Labor Council that the government was responsible for delays in start of construction were labelled "absolutely untrue" by the health minister.

Mr. Martin said: "The government doesn't delay anything. We do not construct hospitals. We do not employ architects. That is left to individual hospital societies. We give grants-in-aid, the highest in the country."

"It's the old game of taking it out on the government—whether the government is to blame or not. But one gets used to unfair criticism."

Mr. Martin said the Royal Jubilee Hospital board was doing a "first-class job" and so was the BCHS in conjunction with the hospital board in approving plans. The minister said: "Everything is going along in the normal way. The architect is well ahead with his plans. This thing must be properly planned to last a very long time."

Sukarno Still Believes In Benefits of Summit

Views Same After Talks With Ike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower yesterday failed to shake Indonesian President Sukarno's belief that an Eisenhower-Khrushchev summit meeting would help ease cold war tensions.

Sukarno, a leader of the United Nations neutralist bloc, said after a 35-minute White House meeting that Eisenhower explained why he did not want to meet with the Soviet premier at this time.

The Indonesian chief said Eisenhower's explanation gave him a clearer picture of the situation. But, drawing his index fingers together to illustrate a meeting, he added:

STICK TO IDEA
"I still stick to the idea that Eisenhower and Khrushchev should meet."

The White House made no mention of this issue in a brief communique after the conference. It said only that Eisenhower and Sukarno "agreed on the necessity of continuing strongly to support the United Nations."

The Eisenhower-Sukarno meeting came after Indonesia and four other neutralist nations lost out in their attempt to force through the United Nations a resolution calling for a Big Two summit meeting.

WITHDREW MOTION
Indian Prime Minister Nehru withdrew the motion after it became obvious it was headed for defeat in the UN General Assembly. Secretary of State Christian Herter had opposed the resolution.

Eisenhower previously wrote the five neutralists that he would not meet with Khrushchev unless there was some prospect of fruitful talks. He also called on Russia to release two captured U.S. airmen from an RB-47 shot down by Soviet fighters.

WANTS APOLOGY
In turn, Khrushchev told the neutralists he would not meet with Eisenhower until the president apologized for the U-2 and RB-47 flights.

Sukarno was the last of the five neutralist leaders to meet with Eisenhower. He flew to Washington from the UN meeting and returned to New York immediately after the White House conference.

DISCUSSED PROGRESS
The White House said Sukarno and Eisenhower discussed the "considerable progress" which Sukarno said Indonesia has made in the economic and social fields since their last meeting.

Later, Sukarno joined the exodus of world leaders from the United Nations "summit" meeting with a charge that the UN had become a cold war battleground.

Sukarno issued a gloomy statement saying the session

Nigeria Has No Intention Of Joining Any UN Blocs

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nigeria, Africa's newest and largest independent state, has no intention of joining any blocs or groups, Nigerian Prime Minister Alhaji Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa said yesterday. "We hate blocs, especially in an organization like the United Nations," Balewa said. "The role of Nigeria will always be to follow the truth. Our permanent representative to the UN will be thinking freely and support what is best for the world."

Filipino Tells UN:

Americans Inept As Imperialists

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Philippine Ambassador Francisco Delgado criticized Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in a speech to the General Assembly late Wednesday and touched off another of the Russian's fist-pounding exhibitions.

The Philippine delegate recalled his country's 400 years of colonial status, saying it had experienced "a long litany of evils" and there had been "a residue of good."

"We are confident that our relations with the United States, now that we are independent, will continue to be inspired by a spirit of mutual respect and consideration," he said.

All Hope Is Not Gone

A SOVIET military authority has written in a Russian magazine that a nuclear war between East and West would kill up to 600,000,000 persons in Russia, the U.S.A. and Europe. Canada would undoubtedly come into this orbit.

This is not a new estimate; others have pointed to similar results in event of a global outbreak involving nuclear weapons. Such a prospect scarcely bears thinking about, but its potential horror is probably the best safeguard for peace. It has been suggested that to China—because life is cheap there and it has millions of "expendables"—a nuclear war has no dread, but no other nation can afford such callous complacency.

Not even Soviet Russia, in spite of the belligerence of Premier Khrushchev at the UN where, as Prime Minister Menzies of Australia put it, he "has sought to convert the United Nations into the disunited nations." No more than the West can Russia be anxious for a war which would leave it in chaos and utter ruin.

It is a continuing Communist aim to spread its dominance but for all his rantings Mr. Khrushchev is a shrewd and calculating individual. He would divide and conquer—and will if he can—but barring some unforeseen accident he will stop short of war. The latter would be the end of his Soviet regime as well as the demise of others.

The prospects for peaceful living are still not cheerful. The cold war has been intensified by Mr. Khrushchev's implacable attitudes and the world will continue on its uneasy perch for years to come. This was implicit in the farewell message of Prime Minister Macmillan—whose speech at the UN was the most outstanding contribution of its present session—as he left for home.

There is no room for either foolish optimism or too much pessimism, he said. It will be a long time before a settlement of East-West problems is reached, but he counselled patience and urged the West to work quietly for peace without sacrifice of its principles of freedom.

That coupled with the deterrent inherent in the estimated casualty roll of a nuclear war offers the best prospect that somehow all will be well in the end.

It Was a Near Thing

FIGURES showing how the vote went in the recent British Columbia elections are thought-provoking. If governments were formed on the basis of popular vote instead of the number of seats won, there would not have been much between the victorious Social Credit party and the CCF, for in terms of voting Premier Bennett's party was only 61,800-odd ahead of Mr. Strachan's, out of a total of slightly under a million. And the Liberals and Conservatives between them scored three votes for every four given to the Socials.

It should give the premier some cause for concern that although the Socials won twice as many seats as the CCF, almost two-thirds of the electors voted against the government. Out of a total vote of 995,356, Social Credit received 386,768.

However, there is no cause for the CCF to feel jubilant, for it is made abundantly plain that socialism is not making much progress in this province, and that the alliance with the Canadian Labor Congress from which such great things were expected failed dismally to deliver votes—which so far as a political party is concerned are all that really count.

Obviously the trade unionists who voted for any of the other parties before the merger were not going to switch allegiance simply because their parent organizations had thrown weight behind the Socialists.

If the election is regarded as a test of free enterprise versus socialism—or what passes for socialism in the CCF—then free enterprise won hands down.

Disregarding the votes given to the Communists and Independents, the return of voting shows that 662,109 spurned the CCF and what it stands for. Out of a total vote of 995,356, that amounts to emphatic rejection.

The CCF may make much of the fact that it came close to defeating Premier Bennett's government, but cannot blink the fact that the great majority of British Columbians want no part of socialism, the CCF-labor merger and the policy of nationalization of industry to which the party is pledged.

They Serve Everybody

THERE is no valid reason why labor interests should not espouse a candidate in the civic elections; the aldermanic board is open to all legitimate aspirants. It would be a mistake for the Victoria Labor Council however—as previous "labor" candidates have found out—to label a candidate in advance as representing only one section of the local public.

One virtue of municipal government is that unlike the senior levels of governance there is no partisan political division among its members. Party politics as such is eschewed; the aldermanic board sits to consider each item of business on its merits. There is no ideology to promote or party whip to line up support or opposition. Aldermen have their private political views but these are kept subdued and are not pertinent to the duties demanded of them.

Aldermen are supposed to be representative of all the City of Victoria.

They are elected at large by all the voters, and their job is to work in the interests of the community as a whole.

It is another mistake to assume that the "ordinary working people" are only those connected with trade unions. All persons who work are working people, nor is there actual distinction between sedentary and manual workers. In terms of remuneration in fact the latter may in many instances be the better off.

It is probably the continual stress on this "working people" theme which has acted against labor candidates in bidding for office. They are so labelled as to suggest to the electorate that they are interested in the welfare of only one group, to the detriment of others.

The City Council is a general board charged with the responsibility of securing the well-being of all city residents, without taint of partisanship. It is best that this concept of municipal duty prevail.

Interpreting the News

European Big Three

BY ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

THREE big men now rule Europe. How they get along together influences decisions that affect the world.

Recently, for instance, the change in relationships among the top three has given a major boost toward economic unity in Europe.

To appreciate the significance of the triumvirate, you have to go back a year or so. At that time, Gen. de Gaulle of France and Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany were getting along famously.

But two was company and three a crowd, leaving the third member of the trio—Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain—as something of an odd man out. Britain's influence on the continent declined sharply.

Now it's a different story. The West German chancellor, who used to carry clippings around in his pocket to prove that Britain was being beastly to the Germans, is growing tired of his flirtation with de Gaulle.

On the rebound, he is turning to Macmillan. As a sign of the changing climate, a German newspaper recently referred to the British prime minister as "good old Mac."

Out of the ripening understanding between Adenauer and Macmillan came the push toward economic unity. All the talk in Whitehall now is of the new "political will" to admit Britain to the European trading club, despite all obstacles.

Meanwhile de Gaulle, alarmed by rebuffs from Adenauer, is said to have written a letter to the chancellor suggesting they try to get back to the "good old days" when France and Germany formed a two-country admiration society.

Maybe Adenauer will heed the plea. If he is serious about getting Britain into Europe—and it looks as though he is—he will have to overcome opposition from de Gaulle, the biggest barrier to British entry.

Alternatively, Adenauer may welcome de Gaulle back into his embrace in return for a friendlier attitude to NATO.

One thing certain is that as long as the Big Three dominate Europe, each new nuance in their relationships will affect events.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."
By TOM TAYLOR

ONE of the queerest notions to which people are prone—hard to shake even when one knows better—is that governments have big bags of gold of their own. In fact they have only what people give them through taxes and other revenues.

Premier Manning drew attention to the fallacy when he reminded a Calgary audience that if a government picks up a tab for any service it is the public which must foot the bill.

Governments themselves blur the picture, however, as when they claim credit for spending this or that amount on some specified project. They are spending the money all right; but not their own money.

So they are equally to blame for false notions.

A Vancouver report says Ernest Hemmingway was barred entry into a hotel cocktail lounge because he was sartorially unkempt. He had been hunting and his clothes were socially demote.

There is no hint of any chagrin or displeasure on his part; no one knew him. But there is the inference that if he had been recognized as the famous author his decor might have been excused.

That would have been as invidious as what happened. Celebrities can afford to dress as they please, but if a certain deportment is customary in an establishment then the rule should be constant.

Hemmingway obeyed quietly; which showed that he knew the score.

How do you handle a person who slaps your face one day and cuddles up to you the next?

That's what Mr. Dag Hammarskjöld must have wondered when Premier Khrushchev greeted him at a Soviet UN party with a smile and a big hug. Only a few days before Khrushchev had denounced him in the harshest terms.

The news dispatch says the UN secretary-general appeared uncomfortable at the volte-face. It's not surprising. The whole UN has been made uncomfortable by the Soviet premier. They don't know how much of his tantrums is genuine and how much is put on.

And that keeps them guessing about his motives and his intentions.

The caption of a picture of Mr. Lester Pearson said he had abandoned his favorite bow-tie, and sure enough there he was with one of those ordinary four-in-hand cravats. I suppose this is in line with the new look he is giving the Liberal Party, but he shouldn't have to make such a personal sacrifice. The bow-tie was a Pearsonian as well as a Churchillian symbol, and it is risky to discard a well-known image.

Anyway, it made him youthful and that's worth something to every man in his sixties. I am a four-in-hander myself but am magnanimous enough to realize how snappy a bow-tie makes a man look.

And since there are far fewer bow-ties worn than four-in-hands this lifts their wearers out of the mundane ruck.

Somebody mentioned Christmas cards in my hearing and I thought "Oh, dear, not yet." I like Christmas, but not when invoked too early or strung out too long. Each occasion to its own valued setting.

In a jet age with everybody flying here and there, either in the air or on the ground, no doubt it's inevitable that the seasons be rushed. The spring fashions come out in winter, the winter ones in summer. Magazines are dated a month ahead. A week or so ago the 1960 car was all the rage and now it's the 1961 model that's being pushed.

Why all the hurry? If things were put in their proper time perspective the sales would be just the same.

The Secret Face of Africa I

Barbaric Rules of Life and Death

By R. J. B.

THE face that Africa turns to the world is a confused and pathetic one which strikes a quick sympathetic chord in the outside world. It is the face of an ingenious people seeking help and understanding, grateful for the littlest crumb of kindness thrown their way. It is the face of a struggling fellow man, willing, striving, hoping, working, wanting desperately to be accepted.

But there is another face of Africa, a hidden, secret, ugly face that few outside of the dark continent have seen. It is an older face, worn by countless centuries, and it is marked with the bestiality of barbaric tribal customs, pocked with the brutality of witchcraft and cannibalism and scarred with fear of supernatural rules of life and death beyond the ken of the Western World.

To have seen this face or even to have caught a passing glimpse of it is to realize but slightly the tangible and intangible problems involving the emerging African. But it is not to understand Africa—for no man, be he Wakamba warrior or Yao mine-worker, Afrikaaner farmer or American missionary, knows Africa.

Too often stories of African witchcraft are dismissed as simply a sensation-causing gimmick used by pulp magazine writers, or merely looked upon as a type of harmless folk-lore that once made Africa an interesting place to visit.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

Witchcraft, black magic and brutal tribal ceremonies are as alive today in Africa as they were in the days of Queen Victoria or even in the years of Solomon. Certainly, many of the more revolting practices have been removed from public view, but they and their practitioners have simply gone underground to avoid action by government authorities. Such rites are more than an occasional orgy to the African—they are part of his life, perhaps the most important—for often his very life depends on them.

From the day he is born—in fact with the very act of his birth—the African comes under the ruling influence of ancient and barbaric beliefs, as did his father before him and his father before him. No move is made without consciously or unconsciously falling under the dictates of the primitive lore.

Against this the white man's Christian teachings, the acceptance of a universal code of justice, the principles of government, law and order, culture and art, philosophies and humanities, all fall away.

To the African, the accumulated knowledge of the world is as nothing before his ancient beliefs and superstitions. For centuries the word of God and the story of the mercy of Christ has been spread throughout Africa by missionaries and thousands of tribesmen have been educated at European and American schools and universities through the generosity of missionary societies. Yet even the product of these schools can fall prey to the old way of life once he has returned to his home land.

True, he may pay lip service to the institute or religious faith that is benefiting him; he may have all the appearance of modern man, but underneath he is the same superstition-riddled tribal warrior his forefathers were long before the advent of Western influence in Africa.

To understand the reason for this it is necessary to realize that only a comparative handful of Africa's millions have actually come under the leavening influence of the Western world. Even the selected few who have attended overseas university courses or have attained some international recognition today as political leaders were born and brought up under the same tribal rites as their ancestors.

The African in his native state has no religion such as is recognized in the Western world. In the main Africans are animists, though it is true that some of the coastal tribes which for centuries have been in contact with Muslim Arabs have substituted for their numerous ancestral gods or spirits a single all-powerful ju-ju to be called upon at all times for all things. This ju-ju can in no way, however, be compared with the God of the Christian, Jewish or Mohammedan faiths.

The interior tribes continue to worship either their ancestors or any number of animate or inanimate objects depending on their needs of the moment. These practices seemingly conflict not at all in the African mind with the concurrent worship of Christ at a local mission station. To the African it would appear that if he is accepted into a Christian church he merely adds another string to his bow of powerful spirits to be called on when the occasion demands.

Most feared and revered member of the African tribe and more powerful than either the village headman or the paramount chief, is the Munga, or witchdoctor. To him the African goes to be healed of sickness, to obtain advice on the value of a woman he wishes to purchase, to see what lies in the future, or to place a curse on another tribesman. The Munga is consulted by a warrior before a battle or a hunt to make him both invincible and invisible. He may also roll the bones to predict the future of the foray. Nothing is beyond his capabilities.

These witch doctors who number thousands throughout Africa, play a vital part in the continuing pattern of tribal life. Each of the major tribes has several employing greater or lesser powers and possessing degrees of seniority. They are also to be found in the wild veldtland villages, in the great mining cities and in the smaller towns. They are as catholic as the powers which are attributed them. Many of them are nomads who wander from point to point selling their favors and powers to the highest bidders wielding tremendous influence over African industrial workers who have become separated from their own people.

Virtue Not the Test

Inconsistency Over China

From The Toronto Star

IT is probable, though not yet certain, that the Chinese Communist government will once again be barred from China's seat in the United Nations.

The United States has rallied a majority on the General Assembly steering committee to recommend deferral of the matter for another year. It may still get onto the assembly agenda, but the two-thirds majority required to seat Peking is unlikely to be found.

Does this continued ostracism of the world's most populous nation serve the cause of peace?

The United States says yes. It argues that Communist China is such a violent and aggressive state that the United Nations would be betraying its own peaceful principles by admitting Peking to membership.

This argument leans on an outdated conception of the UN as a league or club of "peace-loving" states. The conception never fitted the reality of UN membership, even at its birth, and it has yielded steadily over the years to the doctrine of universality.

This is the belief that all auto-mous nations, and certainly all major nations, should be represented in UN if the world organization is to do an effective job of mediating and conciliating international disputes. In this view, a government's virtue or lack of it has nothing to do with the case for UN membership. Indeed, the more obstreperous a regime is, the more desirable it is to subject it to the pacifying and moderating influences within the UN.

We would not expect UN membership to transform overnight the belligerent character of Communist China. But a government that rules 600,000,000 people must surely be brought into the discussion of questions which will determine war or peace, annihilation or human survival.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker urged resumed UN negotiations on disarmament when he spoke to the General Assembly. But the next day Canada joined the United States in voting to keep China out for another year. This seems inconsistent, if not hypocritical. For how much value could a disarmament treaty have, without the adherence of that mighty nation?

Rewarding Work

From The Winnipeg Free Press

THE department of justice is planning to experiment with work camps for prisoners in federal penitentiaries. Mr. Fulton, the minister, should find the experiment rewarding. For the work camps have already proven their merit in the provinces that have tried them.

Penal authorities in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba have found that the prisoners' response to the camps is both wholesome and enthusiastic. Released from the destructive boredom of total incarceration, the men work hard, are more cheerful and better behaved. They are paid a token wage (in Manitoba it is 75 cents a day) and hence can look forward to freedom with a little money in their pockets.

For society, the gain is three-fold. Public works are accomplished at low cost, crowding is relieved in the prisons and the cost of institutional supervision is reduced. Most important, the camps appear to have a genuine rehabilitative value and society thus reclaims productive citizens from criminals who previously were a drain on the community.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

IT sometimes appears that we have to resign ourselves to the age of violence. Maybe the Age of Violence is the name of our era. Apart entirely from the two wars which ushered in the era, with their unparalleled fury and destruction of human life and property and their introduction of new concepts of war, permitting violence on the innocent women and children as one of the accredited implements of warfare, our era has introduced the motor car, the aircraft, and a thousand other machines operated on the principle of controlled violence. Now, with almost incomprehensible violence, we are shooting for the stars.

Out of all this generation of violence has risen a commanding subspecies of violent men, revolutionaries, master minds of big business, and criminals of exceptional range and vision, who avail themselves of violence as naturally as earliest man availed himself of a stone-headed club.

Last year in the United States alone 45,000 people were killed in motor traffic accidents and an estimated $5,500,000,000 of property loss was involved.

Goodness knows what the total cost of violence was in the one year. War is merely one of the chicken-feed aspects of it.

'The Leavings'

In the public interest I would like very much to know what explanation can the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society give if any, for having sold all their good seats for the Kenneth McKeller show before the tickets went on sale.

Does the society pick the best seats for themselves and their friends and expect the public to pay top prices for what they leave over?

The writer happened to be at the wicket 10 minutes before ticket-selling time to reserve seats for the benefit of some whose hearing is impaired. But much to my amazement—all the best seats in the house were already gone.

Compensation Appeals

Mr. Eades, QC, the chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board, was recently quoted as saying that under the Industrial Injuries Act in Britain appeals to the courts on questions of fact had not been allowed since 1946 and that now there were no appeals allowed in Britain against questions of fact under the said act.

If Mr. Eades was reported correctly, then his statements are completely misleading.

It is true that appeals to the courts ceased in 1946, but Mr. Eades did not indicate that in the place of these appeals local tribunals were brought in under the act consisting of three members; one representing employers, one representing employees, and a chairman who is a lawyer and who is appointed by the lord chancellor.

These tribunals are, in fact, independent tribunals and do deal with questions of fact in compensation cases. A decision of these tribunals is binding on the department concerned and on the appellant, subject to a further appeal to a commissioner, the commissioner being a barrister or advocate of not less than ten years' standing. The commissioner is also appointed by the lord chancellor, and he has power to call in two other commissioners to sit with him if it appears that the appeal involves "a question of law of special difficulty." He can also call in expert assessors if the appeal involves "questions of fact of special difficulty."

The appellants are entitled to be legally represented before these tribunals if they so desire, and it should be noted that these tribunals are in addition to the medical appeal tribunals which are also in operation under the British Industrial Injuries Act.

Cheque-Writing on Spree
Earns Suspended Term

Suspended sentence, under bond of $250 for six months, was handed down by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court yesterday to a Victoria woman with two convictions for false pretences.

The magistrate noted that alcohol was the cause of the troubles faced by Ann Elisart, alias Ford, and warned that any further offences would almost certainly mean jail. He also noted that the accused was trying to reform her ways.

Accused had written a number of worthless cheques during a drinking spree.

In the same court another Victoria woman, Doris Hammond, was fined $35 after pleading guilty to taking goods worth $17.72 from the Hudson's Bay Company store.

Pearson Supported

Labor Backs Bid
For Fall Session

Victoria Labor Council has supported the demands by Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson for an emergency fall session of the Commons to discuss unemployment.

Delegates voted to send a letter to this effect to Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Similar letters will go to Mr. Pearson and CCF members of parliament.

Ed Haw, VLC vice-president, said: "All of us can subscribe to Mr. Pearson's thinking that if after three years the government still has no solution of the problem of unemployment, then the Conservatives have no right to be the government of Canada and should resign at once."

NOT CONCERNED

In a slashing attack, Mr. Haw said most Tory MPs "are small manufacturers of small businessmen . . . not really concerned whether the workers have jobs or not."

He said from his observation while visiting Ottawa with a delegation seeking aid for jobs, the majority of government members "didn't have the intelligence to fight their way out of a paper bag, much less get the people of Canada out of the mess we're in."

WINNIPEG (CP)—Portage Avenue, Winnipeg's main artery, was flooded for several blocks during rush hour Wednesday by about 12 inches of water when a water main broke at a downtown intersection.

Traffic was snarled for several blocks, while trolley bus wires were temporarily shorted to add to the confusion.

OTTAWA (CP)—No change is being considered in the Nov. 11 date of Remembrance Day in Canada, Deputy State Secretary Charles Stein said yesterday. This year it falls on Friday.

A London report says Queen Elizabeth has decided that Nov. 13 shall be observed in the United Kingdom as Remembrance Sunday in honor of the dead of two world wars. An announcement said all parts of the Commonwealth would be notified of the arrangements being made in Britain.

Meet Red Challenge!

World's Industrialists Gather in London

LONDON (CP)—Influential the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, expressed surprise, however, at the magnitude of the exports from world industrialists ended Thursday: a three-day conference on the note that both governments and private enterprise must do more to meet the Communist challenge in the world's uncommitted countries.

EVERY DISCUSSION

The theme, cropped up in practically every one of the discussions of five groups set up by the fourth International Conference of Manufacturers to study and report on the broad range of problems that businessmen must face in the 1960s.

There was agreement, however, that the Communist economic onslaught could not be countered by discouraging trade with the Soviet bloc or China.

Dutch industrialist H. J. de Koster noted that the communists largely wanted to buy only machinery and other capital goods from the West—purchases that would serve to strengthen the economies of their states.

He added that in terms of percentages, the sales of some European countries—particularly Germany and Britain—to the Soviet bloc formed only a small part of their total exports.

The Canadian delegation, led by President T. R. McLagan of

New Constitution Timetable To Be Stepped Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Under provincial pressures, the federal government stepped up Thursday its timetable for breaking one of the few remaining legal ties with the United Kingdom and developing a full-Canadian constitution.

Justice Minister Fulton told a federal-provincial constitutional conference of attorneys-general that the federal government is willing, if they wish it, to discuss writing a new constitution, including provision for Canadian-made amendments.

At present, Canada's basic constitution is the British North America Act of 1867, a United Kingdom statute which can be amended only by the British Parliament in matters touching on both federal and provincial jurisdiction.

SEEK FORMULA

Mr. Fulton, in letters to the provinces last month, suggested that they look for a formula first to bring the BNA Act into Canadian Parliamentary jurisdiction and then find a formula to make amendments to it in Canada.

Quebec agreed to this Thursday but other provinces pressed for action on a broader front. Ontario and New Brunswick said they want a truly Canadian constitution. Saskatchewan said the original federal plan would freeze the constitution if no formula were found immediately to amend it.

GO FURTHER

Opening the conference, Mr. Fulton said the original federal plan was just "the first step" towards writing and enacting a new constitution, but if the provincial governments wanted to go further the federal government was willing.

"We could even discuss ways and means of writing and enacting a new constitution in Canada, which of course would itself include an appropriate amending formula," he said.

RESUMES TODAY

The conference will resume today. Key delegates to the conference expressed optimism and there seemed to be no signs of breakdown.

Trans-Canada

One Road At Time —John D

SASKATOON (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker says the Trans-Canada Highway must be completed before further federal road development is considered.

The question of a second Trans-Canada highway, he said Wednesday, certainly would be involved in this consideration and would mean a highway through northern parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta to the Yellowhead Pass.

The immediate concern is to get the Trans-Canada Highway completed now that Quebec has come into the joint federal-provincial scheme, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The federal government was spending $75,000,000 across Canada on the Trans-Canada Highway and for northern access roads. The prime minister thought this was a large enough expenditure for the present.

Duce's Friend Dies

Onetime French girl friend of Italian dictator Benito Mussolini, Madeline La Ferriere—who lived and wrote under pen name Magda de Fontanges—committed suicide in Geneva, Switzerland, yesterday, She was 50.

Queen, Philip Have Their Spats, But . . .

After Andrew, Domestic Bliss

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI)—Like any other long-married couple, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip have had their share of quarrels but these have almost disappeared since the birth of Prince Andrew last February.

"What a difference that bonny infant has made around the house," a friend of the Royal Family said yesterday. "I know Her Majesty is hoping for a fourth child soon so Andrew will have a companion near his own age."

Prince Charles is 11 and Princess Anne is 10. The friend talked about Elizabeth and Philip because next month marks the 13th anniversary of their "marriage of the century" in Westminster Abbey.

There were those who whispered then that the marriage was arranged according to the classical tradition of match-making.

"Time has given them the lie," the friend said. "The Queen certainly chose exactly the kind of man everyone wanted her to marry—but she was in love with him as well. It is and has been a successful marriage."

He chuckled. "They're not the two easiest people in the world to live with, you know. Royalty never is. But for strong-willed types, they rarely clash on major matters. It's little things that likely produce a show of temperament."

One such spat took place the morning of Princess Margaret's wedding to commoner Anthony Armstrong-Jones May 6. It apparently had nothing to do with the wedding, although it partly accounted for the Queen's somber expression during the ceremony.

By the time the royal party returned to Buckingham Palace the tension had dissolved. Some guests heard the smiling Queen murmur to her grinning husband a phrase more often heard in a cottage than a castle—"Ashamed to be seen with me in public, eh?"

There does not seem to be any move to elevate Philip to prince consort—a role played by Queen Victoria's Albert. Until this happens, Philip theoretically does not have the right to attend the Queen's discussions with her ministers.

The friend said he would not be surprised if the mothers of eligible daughters are already planning a long-term strategy for the richest of all match-making prizes. In a decade—or even less—Prince Charles should be looking for a wife who will become a queen.

TODAY! THE GREATEST SIXTY-ONE DERFUL CHEVROLET

Here's the car that reads you loud and clear—the new-size, you-size '61 Chevrolet. A car so right for you in so many ways that once you compare it with the rest of the crop you'll agree nothing else near the money measures up to it.

We started out by trimming the outside size a bit (to give you extra inches of clearance for parking and manoeuvring) but inside we left you a full measure of Chevy comfort. Door openings are as much as 6 inches wider to give feet, knees and elbows the undisputed right of way. And the new easy-chair seats are as much as 14% higher—just right for seeing, just right for sitting.

Once you've settled inside, you'll have high and wide praises for Chevrolet's spacious new dimensions (in the Sport Coupes, for example, headroom has been upped as much as 2 inches, and there's more legroom, too—front and rear). Chevy's new trunk is something else that will please you hugely—what with its deep-well shape and bumper-level loading it holds things you've never been able to get in a trunk before.

Yet, generously endowed as this car is with spaciousness and clean-etched elegance, it holds steadfastly to all the thrifty, dependable virtues Chevrolet buyers have come to take for granted. Your dealer's the man to see for all the details that make this sensationally sensible '61 Chevy a new measure of your money's worth.

There's never been a trunk like it before! The floor's recessed more than half a foot—to form a deep well for holding things you used to leave home. Packing's easier, too—the loading height is as much as 10½ inches lower.

INTRODUCING THE '61 CHEVY BISCAYNE 6

the lowest-priced full-sized Chevy with big-car comfort at small-car prices!

Now you don't have to go without style, space and one of the world's best rides to get a car that's low-priced and economical to drive. Chevy's new '61 Biscaynes—6 or V8—give you a full measure of Chevrolet quality, roominess and proven performance—yet they're priced down with many cars that give you a lot less!

IMPALA 4-DOOR SPORT SEDAN—one of five Impalas that bring you a new measure of elegance from the most elegant Chevrolets of all. Notice what beautiful sense the new roof line makes—the front door entrance height between sill and roof is nearly 2 inches greater.

NOMAD 9-PASSENGER STATION WAGON. You have a choice of six Chevrolet wagons, each with a cave-sized cargo opening nearly 5 feet across and a new concealed compartment for stowing valuables.

BEL AIR 2-DOOR SEDAN, like all '61 Chevrolets, brings you Body by Fisher newness you can use—more front seat legroom and, thanks to a shaved-down driveshaft tunnel, more footroom in the rear.

NEW '61 CHEVY CORVAIR

More space...
and wagons, too!

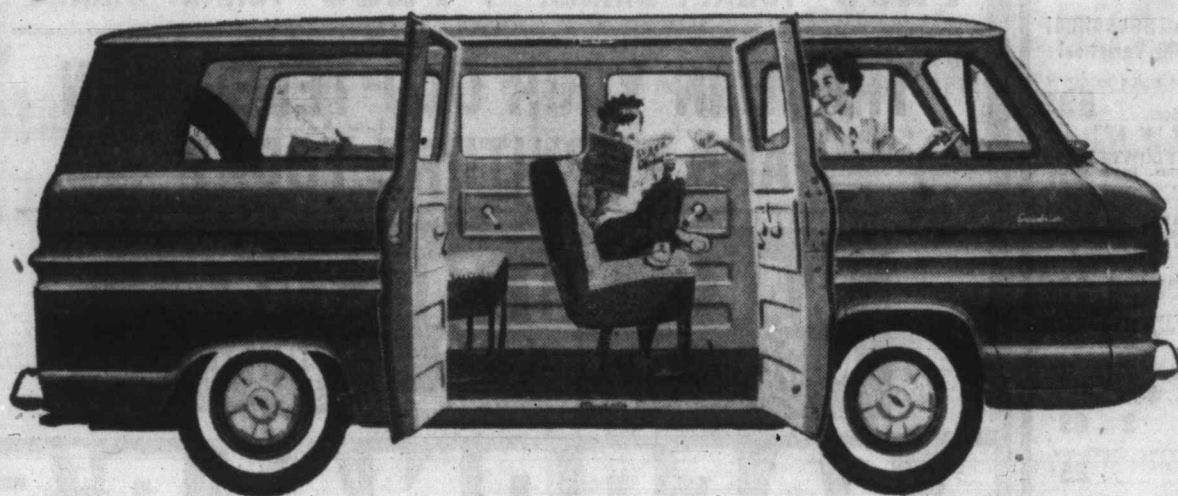

The newest car in Canada: the CORVAIR 700 LAKEWOOD 4-DOOR STATION WAGON. Like all Corvairs, it's powered by a dependable air-cooled rear engine.

This sporty CLUB COUPE gives you almost 12% more luggage space up front plus a longer range fuel tank. Available in both Corvair's 700 and 500 series.

You're looking at the handsome CORVAIR 700 4-DOOR SEDAN. Provisions for heating ducts are built right into its Body by Fisher for more equal distribution of heat front and rear.

More room—more for you, more for your things. More dependable operation. Smarter, smoother styling. More miles per gallon. Station Wagons, too.

Corvair for '61: a complete line of complete thrift-cars from Chevrolet.

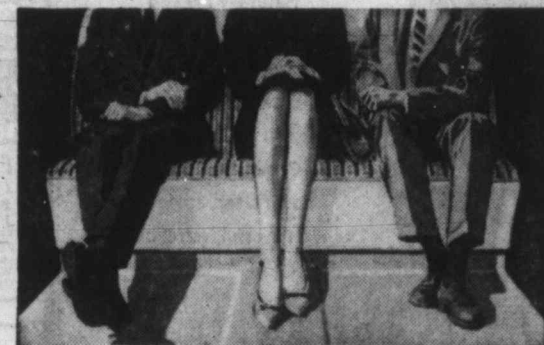

To start with, every Corvair Sedan and Coupe costs less. And Corvair goes on from there to save you money. With extra miles per gallon... quicker-than-ever cold-start warmup so you start saving sooner... a new extra-cost optional heater that warms everybody evenly. Riding along with this extra economy: more room inside for you, more room up front for your luggage (sedans and coupes have almost 12% more useable trunk space).

And our new wagons? You'll love them. They're the greatest thing for families since houses. The Lakewood Station Wagons do a man-sized job with cargo, up to 68 cubic feet of it. The Greenbrier Sports Wagons you're going to have to see—they give you up to 175.5 cubic feet of space for you and your things. Compare that with any other Canadian wagon going!

Corvair's whole thrifty line-up gets its pep from a spunkier 145-cu.-in. air-cooled rear engine. Same rear-engine traction, same smooth 4-wheel independent-suspension ride. See the polished and refined 1961 Corvair first chance you get at your Chevrolet dealer's.

For 1961 Corvair put the spare tire in the rear in coupes and sedans—where it doesn't take up an inch of luggage space in the front compartment.

This shows you for sure who remembers that middle-seat passengers have feet, too. It's Corvair's practically flat floor.

Now in production—the GREENBRIER SPORTS WAGON, with up to twice as much room for people and things as ordinary wagons (shown with optional-at-extra-cost third seat in position).

Last Star of Drama Is Gone

Supporting Players Drift Into Obscurity

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The stars are gone. Only the six supporting players remain from one of the great political dramas of the century—the Army-McCarthy hearings.

And after six years, those turbulent days which split the nation, shook the highest offices in the land and kept millions glued to their TV-sets, are fading into the dimness of history.

Sage and witty Yankee lawyer Joseph N. Welch, one of the lead players, died Wednesday. His gruff-voiced, aggressive co-star, Sen. Joseph McCarthy, died three years ago. To many, they were the hero and villain of the piece.

SUPPORTING ACTORS
The supporting actors—Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker, Maj. Irving Peress, Roy Cohn, David Schine, Robert Stevens, Ray Jenkins—and the bit players are dispersed around the country, leading lives of relative obscurity.

The army-McCarthy hearings were the climax of McCarthy's controversial crusade against what he considered the infestation of the government by Communists.

The Wisconsin Republican antagonized the Pentagon by upbraiding Zwicker, then commander of Camp Kilmer, N.J., for the promotion of Peress to major. Peress, a dentist, had been accused of Communist leanings.

The army charged that Cohn, a McCarthy aide, tried to coerce favored treatment for Schine, another aide who had been drafted.

McCarthy countered that Schine was being held as a "hostage" by the army to persuade the senator to call off his investigations.

Stevens, then army secretary, clashed with McCarthy over the lawmaker's right to question Zwicker. The secretary later acquiesced.

The senator's own subcommittee then convened the explosive army-McCarthy hearings to investigate the exchange of charges. McCarthy stepped aside as chairman for the famous inquiry.

PORTRAYED JUDGE
Welch, dry-witted Iowa-born Boston lawyer, was engaged to serve as counsel for the army without pay. His pixie humor and quietly intense tilt with McCarthy won him millions of fans.

He later portrayed a judge in the movie "Anatomy of a Murder."

McCarthy was condemned by the senate after the hearings, lost his power and died in 1957.

Jenkins, who was the subcommittee counsel, is a lawyer in Knoxville, Tenn.

He said he was "shocked at the sad news" of Welch's death.

Victoria West firehall hasn't been condemned as city council finance committee heard it was, assistant engineer Roderick Clack said yesterday—just closed.

The committee voted to call for a report after hearing a reference in a letter from the city assessor to the building having been condemned.

"The Victoria West Community Club relinquished it and we have padlocked it because so many people had keys," Mr. Clack said. "But it hasn't been condemned."

Recreation Board for District To Be Discussed Next Week

A meeting to discuss feasibility of establishing a recreation commission to serve Greater Victoria will be discussed at a special meeting at Spencehouse, Thursday at 8 p.m.

The meeting has been called by Victoria College professor Fred Martens, under sponsorship of the Community Welfare Council. Representatives from 20 interested organizations have been invited to attend.

Recreation commissions now operate in Oak Bay, Saanich, Langford and Metcheson and receive substantial grants from the provincial government.

Financially almost immediately, if it were decided to form a commission. Maximum grants would almost certainly apply.

Victoria would benefit if it would almost certainly apply.

Beam-Net Scoop Fish Fleet Target of Chemainus Wrath

CHEMAINUS—More than 30 fish boats operating off shore with beam-net scoops are the target of nearly every major organization in the area.

They are protesting the use of beam trawlers scooping the bottom of adjacent waters and objecting to the issuance of a licence to the fleet for shrimp-catching, as well as the number of undersize fish being killed.

James Webster, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said his group will continue its fight to have the area closed.

The Rod and Gun Club executive has voted to ask CCF leader Robert Strachan for help in finding how the fleet got a licence after the area had been closed.

They will also take it to the Vancouver Island affiliated fish and game clubs' quarterly meeting next month to ask for backing of the whole island in a letter to the department of fisheries.

Al Dyer, Rod and Gun Club executive, said he fears the method of scooping fish off the bottom "will finish fishing here, commercially and sport, for years."

Bert Collinson, Crofton, a commercial fisherman for 40 years, said "orthodox" fishermen believe dragging is "a snake-in-the-grass" way of making a living.

Close Area People Ask

The fleet is believed to be from Vancouver.

He said seine and trawler catches this year on the coast have been so bad fishermen in the area will have to seek extra employment. Fishing now, though, is not as bad as it was in 1914 or 1933, he said.

Dave Anderson, the area's only shrimp fisherman, said that he is scared to put out his traps because already some of the scooping for shrimp does have been lost. The area is open to traps, but had been closed to trawlers with beams.

"It looks like the end of shrimp fishing in the area," he said. Three shrimp fishermen were "wiped out" several years ago when the area was scooped nearly clean.

Since the beam trawler fleet worked the area "the effects have been telling," said Mr. Dyer. "Fishing has been poor."

Coun. Gerald Smith, said yesterday that the matter will definitely come before council next Wednesday. He couldn't vouch for poor fishing in the area, because he caught three coho.

Fisheries officers have said

$1,637,212 To Be Spent On Island

Vancouver Island will share in a $100,000,000 public works program to be undertaken across Canada by the federal works department this winter. Works Minister Walker announced in Ottawa yesterday.

The department has planned the spending of $818,742 at Port Alberni and $818,470 at Nanaimo on wharf construction.

Renix Case

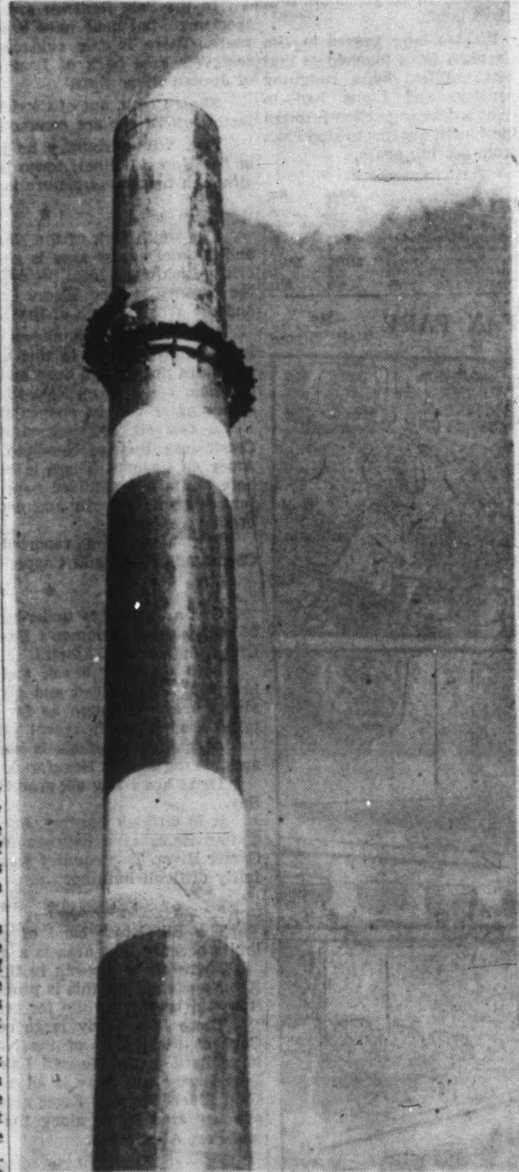

Witnesses Found By Police

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police uncovered two new witnesses Thursday in the mysterious disappearance of businessman Daniel Renix, as dragging operations went on in English Bay for his body.

Police said two witnesses who saw the 26-foot pleasure boat Sea Esta 111 at a wharf in central False Creek have helped to establish that Renix's trip in the boat was a short one.

Renix was last seen a week ago when he went to take a prospective buyer out in the boat for a trial run. The boat left its regular mooring place in Coal Harbor about 10 a.m. and one witness now says it was tied up in False Creek 1½ hours later.

Both of the new witnesses had been out of town for a week and had just learned of the disappearance. Both made positive identification of the Sea Esta 111, and placed the boat in False Creek.

Fear of heights is not a thing to worry either Frank Lawvak of Toronto or Ronny Pearson of Campbell River who have almost completed the painting of this 350-foot stack at the Elk Falls paper mill at Campbell River. The two men work on the job without safety belts and disregard high winds and the heat of the stack. They climb up and down a steel ladder at the side. (Baldwins photo.)

Advertised Credit Rates Urged by Women's Group

EDMONTON (UPI)—The Catholic Women's League of Canada yesterday urged the government to force finance companies to advertise the cost of money lending.

The league resolved at its annual meeting here to petition the government to make regulations requiring money lenders to furnish persons receiving credit with a written statement noting the amount of the sale price before a transaction is completed.

"The indiscriminate use of credit buying contributes to inflation and this seriously affects the stability of the family," the league declared.

The league also urged all Catholic women to wear "modest apparel" at all times. A resolution said "the wearing of immodest apparel by women of all ages is steadily increasing and is an occasion of sin."

Another resolution urged the federal government to

Massacre of 1,500 Charged to Lumumba

LEOPOLDSVILLE (UPI)—Joseph Lelunga, president of the Baluba tribal association in the "mining state" when seceded from the Congo in Kasai province, yesterday accused ousted premier Patrice Lumumba's troops of massacring more than 1,500 men, women and children in the area.

Lelunga said the slayings took place in the Bakwanga and Shilenge areas since last August when Lumumba's soldiers invaded the mining state to put down the independence movement.

Bakwanga was declared the capital of the mining state. Lelunga said he was held prisoner in Luluabourg after his plane was forced to land Aug. 19. He said he was released two days ago on orders of Congolese strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu.

Meanwhile, Mobutu ordered the arrest of two police commanders known for their pro-Lumumba leanings in an effort to tighten up his control on the Congo.

He also disclosed he was under a doctor's care for treatment of the strain he has been under since he took over Sept. 14.

In Elisabethville, Mobutu's delegation sent to urge a meeting of provincial leaders to a conference here was turned back at the airport by police of Katanga state which premier Moïse Tshombe declared independent.

They flew on to Kamina where they remained overnight. Mobutu has charged that Guinean and Ghanaian troops of the United Nations command have interfered in the internal affairs of the nation by supporting Lumumba.

Duncan Man in Custody Facing Negligence Count

CHEMAINUS—Douglas John Williams, of Duncan, is in custody here after being charged with criminal negligence.

Magistrate W. H. Bryant set bail at $1,000 and remanded the case for trial on Oct. 13.

Williams was the driver of a car that was in collision with one driven by Jentje Renema, 20, also of Duncan, who died as the result of injuries. His funeral is at Duncan tomorrow.

Ron MacIsaac, Nanaimo, appeared for Williams. Duncan lawyer David Williams, no relation to the accused, appeared for the crown.

Consumers Group

Safety Devices Asked for Cars

QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian Association of Consumers Wednesday asked car makers to install safety devices as standard equipment on all models to reduce highway accidents.

In a resolution approved at the second day of its annual meeting, the association said devices as approved by the Canadian Highway Safety Committee should be used. It said an educational campaign should be started by the association "to acquaint consumers with the facts about such safety devices."

The association also endorsed efforts of the Nova Scotia health department in seeking nation-wide legislation barring X-ray fitting machines in shoe stores.

Mrs. J. L. Savage of Toronto was elected president of the association. She succeeded Isabel Atkinson.

Mrs. J. G. White of Winnipeg was elected treasurer.

Lions Battle Back to Third Spot With 21-13 Victory Over Eskimos

Casey Had Reason to Cheer

New York Yankees, who usually take world series victories in stride, whooped it up in dressing room following 16-3 lambasting of Pittsburgh Pirates. Here manager Casey Stengel, right, cheers for winning pitcher Bob Turley and photographer. (AP Photofax.)

Yanks Slaughter Pirates Head Home Favorites

NEW YORK (UPI)—It won't be four straight like in 1927, but the New York Yankees began thinking in terms of five today, now that they again are looking like old "Murderer's Row." They are only even with the Pittsburgh Pirates going into tomorrow's third game of the 1960 World Series. But the way that they evened the count at 1-1 yesterday when they bombed the Pirates, 16-3, at Forbes Field, put them back solidly in the favorite's role.

The oddsmakers quoted them 8½ to 5 to win the series chiefly on the strength of the manner in which they humiliated the Pirates.

PITCHING PARADISE

Furthermore, they were 7½ to 5 favorites to beat the Pirates in the third game at Yankee Stadium tomorrow with Whitey Ford going against Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell. Both are left-handers and Yankee Stadium is supposed to be a pitching paradise for southpaws.

It has been for Ford, although his record this year was only 12-9. But he has been the Yankee clutch pitcher for years, especially in the Stadium.

FAST BALLER

Mizell, a fast-baller, had a 14-8 record. Thirteen of those wins came after the Pirates obtained him from the St. Louis Cardinals in May. But he has never pitched in Yankee Stadium where late afternoon shadows become a problem, especially for the left fielders.

Because he has heard so much about those shadows, manager Danny Murtagh, whose Pirates flew here last night, ordered an afternoon workout today.

Stengel didn't even know "what my lineup will be for Saturday's game."

DID ALL RIGHT

"I went with my veterans yesterday and we did all right," he observed. "I just might go with them again." There is one thing Casey said he was sure of. "My guy with the bad legs will be in center field."

That's Mickey Mantle, who hit two home runs yesterday, one of them a tape-measure job, to lead the Yankees to their one-sided triumph.

RATHER ROUTINE

The first was rather routine, a blow with one on in the fifth inning that turned out to be enough for New York because it gave the Yankees a 5-1 lead.

But in the seventh, Mantle really picked one. With two men on base, he lifted a pitch from southpaw Joe Gibbon, the fifth of six Pittsburgh pitchers, over the ivy covered wall in center, some 460 feet from home plate.

Stamps Defeat Portland Bucks

MOOSE JAW (CP)—Calgary Stampers outlasted Portland Buckaroos, 4-3, in a ragged but close-checking Western Hockey League exhibition game before about 1,000 fans here Thursday night.

Walden Leads Leos in Rain

By JIM TANG

VANCOUVER—B.C. Lions met their greatest challenge with their finest effort here last night and battled through a driving rain to a 21-13 victory over Edmonton Eskimos and back into third place in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Healthier than they've been in weeks after a 12-day layoff, and up against a team minus several of its best linemen, Lions built up a 14-0 lead, took advantage of a break to score again when Esks seemed ready to come alive, and held on.

From there the Esks had much the better of the play, getting a touchdown from Bright early in the third quarter to cut the margin to 14-7. But Mike Caic recovered Bright's fumble on the Edmonton 34 and Fleming scored from six yards out four plays later.

Walden later passed to Jim Carphen for a touchdown that was nullified by a roughing penalty. And Lions had to fight a delaying action through the fourth quarter to stop Esks from scoring, again.

There were a lot of standouts for Lions. On offence it was Jim Walden, Nub Beamer, By Bailey and Willie Fleming grinding out the yards behind Steve Cotter and Tommy Hinton. Defensively there was the grimly with a determined, defensive effort when the Green and Gold of Edmonton finally did get untracked.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Big game hunters get their chance on Vancouver Island this Thanksgiving Weekend when the elk, or wapiti, season opens Saturday morning and continues until Oct. 23, for bulls only, with a limit of one to a hunter.

Hunters are reminded that to hunt elk they must have a big game firearms licence, which at $7 is the biggest bargain in hunting licences procurable in North America and allows sportsmen to hunt all game and birds (in season) found in B.C. A $2 moose-elk tag must also be purchased.

Elk hunting re-opened on Vancouver Island in the 1956-57 hunting season and the number shot has been increasing each year, reaching a maximum of about 50 elk a year. Last year about 25 elk were shot in the Nanaimo River area, but that same area had about 90 per cent of the hunting pressure.

Here, for the first time, are listed all the places on Vancouver Island where it is known there are elk herds:

In the Port Renfrew area, elk tracks have been seen by sportsmen, but none have been shot there by hunters in past years. There is fair evidence of elk in the Jordan River reservoir area back of Bear Creek, Weekes Lake and west of Jordan River flats.

Shaw Creek, out of Cowichan Lake, is the most southerly sector where elk are commonly hunted.

The Nitinat country holds a few elk and there are elk in the Upper Nitinat, towards the west side of Arrowsmith, although the access picture is not clear in that area.

The south fork of the Nanaimo River and the MacMillan and Blodel access area is some more elk country, but majority of elk come from the upper Nanaimo River system from the country around Fleece Creek, Saddle Creek, Green River and the West Branch of the Nanaimo.

Crown Zellerbach allows unrestricted access, by permits issued at the gates, to this upper Nanaimo system, but the gates are not always open and hunters have to take a chance on them being open. Yesterday's rain gives some hope that access gates will be opened this weekend.

A few elk are bagged each year from the Deadwood Creek area, back of Nanaimo and on the east face of Mount Amor de Cosmos. There is big slashing on the bottomlands here and a big shoulder goes up Mount Amor de Cosmos to junky second growth and deciduous cover. It is rough, but productive hunting.

Elk have been reported in the western portion of Chemainus River and Copper Canyon.

One area that is under-hunted, but where there are lots of elk, is King Solomon's Basin at the upper end of China Creek, out of Port Alberni.

Both Coleman Creek and China Creek have big open basins at the top end and elk are known to roam the sub-alpine areas, although as far as is known, none have been taken from there in recent years.

A small band of elk is known to be in the APL Camp 1 area, at the foot of Beaufort at the Beaver Creek Road.

There are a few elk around Bradley Creek, back of Union Bay.

It is difficult hunting, but there are herds of elk in the Oyster River area between Merville, Constitution Hill, and Oyster River. This country was burned off in 1939 and is now fairly difficult hunting.

The Elk River band of elk in Strathcona Park is off limits because that area is a game preserve.

There are a few elk in the upper Salmon and Nemakey River systems, but this is probably not a large herd although it would be worthwhile for zealous hunters.

There is a fairly large concentration of elk at Beaver Cove at the mouth of the Nimpkish and there is a fairly large herd in the Nawitit Lake and River country north of Port Hardy and there is an increasing number of elk in the Gold River-Muchalet River area, to which access is nil. There are scattered bands along the west coast, Quatsino, Rupert and Port Alice areas.

On the fishing scene, attention this Thanksgiving Weekend will be on Cowichan Bay for the annual coho derby and prospects there look good. In the early part of this week eight or nine boats were bringing in 15 to 18 fish a day from the bay area, ranging from seven to 14 pounds. Blue and white bucktail, trolled with small spinner $5 to 90 feet behind the boat has been doing the trick.

Anyone planning to fish the Cowichan Bay derby should reserve boats now. There are launching facilities at Falt Bros. and small boats may be launched from the beach at the log booms.

It is not likely the fishing boundary across the mouth of the river and out into the bay will be lifted for the derby.

In Saanich Inlet the coho are still in the Mill Bay area along the log booms past the marker buoy and off Whiskey Point to the gravel wharf. Trick seems to be to troll bucktails, preferably green and white, at three to four ounces of weight and 65 pulls of line. They are biting all through the day at certain times.

There are a few scattered fish springs, especially off the Mill Bay marker. But go deep, 250 feet and planer. Few fishermen apparently realize there is 600 feet of water, just 300 feet out from the marker.

Port Renfrew and Sooke areas could be good bets for coho over the weekend, and on the freshwater scene fishing should be good almost anywhere in trout lakes and at the mouths of rivers. Salmon are being picked up on the bars in most rivers now and two a day, or six a season is the limit.

They provide a good fight, but most people release them. When releasing them hold them by the tail, facing upstream, for a few minutes, until they regain their strength. Then give them a shove into the river and they will scoot away to spawn their eggs.

Racing Fans Ignore Weather Keep Sandown Wickets Busy

Showery weather and a sloppy track proved no deterrent to horse racing fans at Sandown Park Thursday—they still bet $67.79 more than the same day last year, to continue a trend that has been evident from the outset.

Only three more racing days are left, and with the quality of races lined up for today, Saturday and Monday, the Thanksgiving holiday, betting records are sure to tumble again.

The rain and slop did nothing to detract from Thursday's card—but don't tell jockey Jimmy Broomfield. The leading rider at the meet found himself walking in the first race as Painted Pet fell rounding the first turn.

However, Broomfield put a leg up on Cambie Belle on the next race and won by a half-length over the charging Master Grey.

Jockey George Miller grabbed riding honors for the rest of the day, winning in the fourth, fifth and seventh races.

Vic Valley won his second in fourth race. Sharp Regards was the longest-horned winner, paying $20 for a deuce winning the third.

Vancouver Mayor Opposes PNE Pact

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mayor Tom Alsbury said Thursday he will ask for a legal opinion on a decision by directors of the Pacific National Exhibition to give British Columbia Lions an exclusive two-year contract for use of Empire Stadium.

Mayor Alsbury told reporters he is personally opposed to the decision—taken Wednesday night by the PNE directors who operate the city-owned stadium—and the matter will probably be raised at next Tuesday's council meeting.

Financier Peter Graham had wanted playing rights for the stadium in his bid to bring an American Football League team to Vancouver. The PNE directors decided to give the Lions exclusive football rights to the field for the next two years on the grounds that both teams would lose by competition.

Nine city councillors, who are automatically directors of the PNE, attended Wednesday night's meeting and only two voted in favor of an exclusive contract.

"Definitely opposed it," said Mayor Alsbury. "I'm against an exclusive contract for any city property."

Graham also plans to seek legal advice on the question.

Versatility in Action

Drakes, Cavaliers Play U.S. Football

Victoria Drakes (remember?) will make one of their infrequent home stands tomorrow afternoon at Macdonald Park, when they host Seattle Cavaliers in an exhibition football game that will be played under American rules.

Drakes, currently in a fight for first place in the Pacific Coast Canadian Football Conference, haven't won when they game since Sept. 17 when they met Seattle Ramblers in an exhibition. With the league out to three teams, only one of Drakes' games to date has been at home. That was the opener way back on Sept. 3.

It's a tough situation for a club that needs to build up crowds, and for fans who would like a better look at a club once again a possible contender for Western Canada intermediate honors.

There is no doubt that Drakes are a strong club in the conference. They have been improving steadily, now have Jack Patrick back to give Chuck Weeks help at quarterback, and are only two points behind the first-place Vancouver Grizzlies.

Grizzlies will be here Oct. 15 in a game that will decide first place, but for the moment Patrick and the Drakes are concentrating on Cavaliers.

Not rated as strong as Seattle Ramblers, Cavaliers are none-

Habs Blank Leafs; Hawks Beat Wings

It took Montreal Canadiens just 66 seconds last night to declare they are still the power in the National Hockey League.

With the game just 66 seconds old, Bernie "Boom Boom" Geoffroy rifled a shot past Johnny Bower, and Bobby Hull fired a 20-footer past Terry Sawchuk in the opening minutes of the second period, after Ron Murphy scored on a power play and Bobby Hull fired a 20-footer past Terry Sawchuk in the opening 20 minutes.

The Wings came to life with two goals in the second period. Len Lunde scored at 8:12 on a power play pass from Norm Ullman and four minutes later rookie Len Haley, subbing for the injured Gordie Howe, raced down right wing for a 50-foot shot past Glenn Hall.

ONLY THREAT
But that was to be the only serious Wings threat. Ed Litzenberger made it 4-2 with 12 seconds remaining in the period, and the Hawks were content to play tight defensive hockey in the third.

Hall and Sawchuk each made 22 saves.

Make People Like You!

Take Long Look In Your Mirror

By LELORD KORDEL
(Eleventh of a Series)

If you are despondent, half-sick, bad tempered, and are tired of it—it's time you learned a little more about blood sugar and how it can help you to a sweetened personality!

Not one, but many ailments seem to assail you at every turn. You snarl at your family, snap at your fellow workers, and hate your boss. He used to be a nice fellow, too, but now he's impossible.

Who's impossible? Take a good, long look at yourself in that mirror. What you see is far from pleasant.

A sallow skin. Dull, clouded eyes that seem to lack the intelligent look they once possessed. Deep lines that temper, tension, and fatigue have etched on a once smooth face.

EXCESSIVE WEARINESS

How did this happen to you? This excessive weariness and apathy that almost amount to stupidity?

And what's happened to the personality you used to have—your optimism, verve, friendliness, vitality and enthusiasm for living that used to make every day an adventure?

Is this what it's like to be old? But you're not old—not even middle-aged.

Then why do you have all of these aches and pains? The tension in the back of your neck and shoulders? The stiff and aching knees? The stomach pains characteristic of ulcers, and the tenderness in the upper left abdomen?

The devastating headaches? The restlessness that keeps you from relaxing even though you're exhausted? The inability to concentrate or make a decision?

MORE FRIGHTENING

Still more frightening are the sudden attacks of heart palpitation that occasionally seize you in the middle of the night, so severe that your bed seems to shake in unison with your heart's thumping.

Your doctor can find nothing organically wrong, and diagnoses it as "cardiac neurosis," which means a nervous condition that manifests itself in the symptoms associated with organic heart disease.

The question is, what can you do about it?

First of all, you can go and have a blood-sugar test. The six-hour Glucose Tolerance Test can determine whether or not you have low blood sugar, which is perhaps the only ailment that can account for such varied and multitudinous symptoms.

HUNGER DISEASE

Hyperinsulinism—which has been called variously "sugar starvation," "the hunger disease," and "chronic fatigue"—is the exact opposite of diabetes.

The diabetic has to take insulin to stay alive, while the victim of hyperinsulinism manufactures his own insulin—and too much of it! The liver converts sugar into starch, and doesn't leave enough in the circulating blood.

MOST BODY CELLS

Most of your body cells receive nourishment from various sources, but your brain's sustenance is from glucose alone, and that from moment to moment, as it can't store sugar for future use as other organs can.

The most common form of hyperinsulinism is called hypoglycemia, which is one way of saying "low blood sugar." The islands of Langerhans (in the pancreas) seem to be perfectly healthy and sound in type and structure except for one thing: they produce more insulin than they should.

FALLS TOO LOW

When the blood-sugar level falls too low, the adrenal glands get busy and pump adrenalin into the blood, which they do in an emergency to enable you to fight or defend yourself. Only this time there's no emergency and you have nothing to fight, but the adrenalin has to do something.

What it does is bring on the flushing, palpitation of the heart, and convulsions such as a diabetic has when he's taken an overdose of insulin. But you're not a diabetic, and it's your own oversupply of insulin that's done the damage.

There is complete agreement among doctors upon the fundamentals of diet for low blood sugar: a good, hearty breakfast, positively no sugar, a snack between breakfast and luncheon, another in the middle of the afternoon, and always something to eat before going to bed.

Lists of taboos vary in a slight degree, but almost all include, no smoking before meals! Tests show that one cigarette before breakfast is more harmful than a whole pack afterward.

BLOOD SUGAR

A drop in blood sugar can change your whole personality. As it continues to fall below normal, you progressively become more irritable, moody, depressed, grouchy, inefficient, and un-co-operative.

The victim of low blood sugar should take frequent meals, so that instead of having three big rises and drops in his blood sugar, he'll have several small ones which may in time smooth out to a normal level.

SUDDEN RISE

The sudden rise in blood sugar is what stimulates the islands of Langerhans to produce an oversupply of insulin, and for that reason no sweets are permitted—not even honey, grape juice or prune juice. (All other unsweetened juices are allowed.) A high-protein diet is most effective because the protein foods are turned into blood sugar more slowly by the body's chemistry, which eases that sudden letdown.

IRRITABLE, DEPRESSED

If you are tired of having people avoid you, sick of your own miserable disposition and irritable, depressed feeling, dismayed at your loss of friends and your lack of ambition, relief can be had with just a little effort.

FRANK COUSINS

... lacked support

Gaitskell Defeats Revolt

SCARBOROUGH, Eng. (CP)—The leadership group of Britain's Labor party outmaneuvered Thursday another challenge to Hugh Gaitskell's leadership by left wingers who had overturned his defence policy Wednesday.

The attack on Gaitskell once again was led by Frank Cousins, general secretary of the Transport Workers Union. He plumped for stronger emphasis on nationalization in the executive's statement of party policy and aims.

LACKED SUPPORT

But Cousins Thursday lacked the support of other unions which backed him in the revolt in favor of unilateral nuclear disarmament. The party conference upheld the leadership by a margin of more than 2,000,000 votes after Gaitskell personally defended a proposal to water down the concept of wholesale nationalization.

The debate originated at a conference last year shortly after the Conservatives had defeated Labor in the election. Gaitskell aroused vigorous opposition then by suggesting that the party constitution be revised because it gave the impression Labor wanted to nationalize the entire economy. He had never suggested that the party drop plans for further nationalization, Gaitskell said. But there were other ways of achieving public ownership and party plans needed qualifying to win electoral support.

The "other ways" included co-operative enterprises, municipal ownership and public investment in private concerns.

Cuba Invaded?

Castro Leading Defence Forces

HAVANA (UPI)—The government reported yesterday that a 27-man invasion force, including three Americans, landed on the extreme north-eastern tip of Oriente province Tuesday.

Unconfirmed reports said Premier Fidel Castro had flown into eastern Cuba to lead his troops against the invaders, described by exile sources as spearheading a "second front."

An official communiqué charged the invaders "came from the United States and carried an American flag." (In Washington, the state department indicated it believed the "invasion" to be a put-up job by the Castro regime to embarrass the United States).

A Cuban communiqué said troops and militia made contact with the enemy at Hiram de Nibujon, 24 hours after the sea landing at Navas Bay, between Moa and Baracoa.

The expeditionary leader, Armentino Fera, known as "El Indo" (The Indian), was said to have been killed and two of his men captured. Fera was identified as a former captain in the private army of ex-Sen. Rolando Mas-

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Whenever two or more gardeners are gathered together at this time of the year, the argument will be sure to arise as to whether it pays to sow sweet peas in the fall. This hardy perennial battle has been waging now for more years than I care to remember.

Let's face it—fall sowing, without a coldframe or cloches, is definitely a gamble but, in a reasonably sheltered site, it is a worthwhile gamble. You may lose your plants through inclement weather one year out of three but, when the gamble comes off, you get stronger plants and better and earlier flowers. In England, with a climate similar to ours, the Daily Mail cup, awarded every year for the 12 best vases of sweet peas, has never been won by any blooms other than those from fall-sown plants.

Fall-sown sweet peas seem to act almost like biennials. After an initial spurt of growth in cool fall weather, the plants stand still and rest in mid-winter, which seems to give them additional vigor when growth resumes in early spring. Perhaps they keep on growing at the roots in cold weather, developing a bigger and more branched root system. The plants are hardier and late spring frosts which would kill seedlings raised in warmth have no effect whatever on these winter-acclimatized plants.

I am very much against the use of the usual sweet pea trench for these fall-sown plants. Our biggest hazard in winter is not so much low temperature but soggy wet conditions and puddled ground. Sweet peas can take a surprising amount of dry cold, only to perish miserably from root rot if the soil is permitted to become a sea of goopy mud.

A trench, no matter how well constructed, tends to become a drainage sump for all the surface water in the garden. Better by far is a slightly raised bed or a site protected by a drainage ditch on either side to carry off surplus water.

I think it pays, too, to sprout the seeds before sowing them, for a sprouted seed is less likely to rot than one which lies dormant. Seeds may be sprouted indoors in slightly dampened sand or vermiculite or in an old-fashioned "seed dolly." This is a length of clean flannel cloth, scalded and sterilized in boiling water and wrung out. Seeds are spaced out on the damp flannel and the whole thing is rolled up and placed in a warm cupboard. The dolly is unrolled and examined daily and the sprouted seeds removed and sown in the prepared seed bed.

I like to dust my seeds with an anti-rot seed dressing before setting them to germinate in the seed dolly and again just before sowing. Rot is the important enemy to combat, and a protective coating of Arasan, Ceresan M, Spergon or Terrachlor will go a long way to keep this fungus infection at bay.

Seeds are sown an inch deep and six inches apart in the prepared site and I think it pays to cover each sown seed with an up-ended jam jar to hasten emergence of the seedling. Once the seedlings come through, the jars are removed and the baby plants grown on as hardily as possible.

If you have no cloches to cover the plants during periods of really severe weather, it is a good idea to have a supply of dry straw handy. This can be heaped loosely over the plants during the emergency but should be removed as soon as the weather moderates.

At a Fish Fry with Andy

Andy Griffith, who is so unconquered by success and show business that he sounds like three yards out in the South Carolina swamp, was asked about his accent the other day. Had he ever tried to lose it? And the reply—I do de-cleah—went something like this:

"If ah was to lose mah accent, ah'd have to compete with actors and ah wouldn't do that for a hundred dollar bill."

Griffith, accent and all, is going to have his own show this year, the Andy Griffith Show (Channels 7, 11, Monday at 9:30 p.m.). Having lunch with him is a bit like attending a fish fry, the language is so spacious. It was early in the day—this particular fish fry—and Andy (I have trouble not calling him Look heah, Andeh) opened with the observation that everybody's mean in the mawmin. "Whah, mah wife don't speak. Ah don't speak. Her daddy don't speak. Why none of my people ever spoke in the mawmin."

In this show he'll be known as Andy Taylor. Why? "Ah ast the same thing. Why cay-ant ah use mah own name? They tole me because ah'm a married mayan. Been married 10 years and had two children. On the show ah'm a widower with one child and it wouldn't do for me to be makin' eyes at a girl if I was married 10 years."

Griffith spent about a year in "Destry," a musical on Broadway, but he didn't seem to get much nourishment out of it. "I got kind of tired of it," he confessed. "It wasn't very funny. It's great when you're doin' somethin' funny and the laughter comes wellin' up outta that there audience like a wave. It's good when you get laughter like that. It sure is good. But Destry wasn't very funny, nope not funny at all."

You will hardly find anywhere a more modest actor than Griffith. "Ah have to play a variation on what ah've always done because ah'm limited." You can't hardly find another actor who will admit he's limited but Griffith not only will but will elaborate on it.

"Ah found out not long ago on a Playhouse 90 just how limited ah can be-uh. It was a Playhouse 90 that ah think had a good deal to do with killin' Playhouse 90."

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Laurence Harvey, brightest gleam in the eye of Joan Cohn, widow of the late Columbia studio boss Harry Cohn, was expected to marry her before he married Margaret Leighton, top British stage actress. Their friends expect them to rectify this oversight when the Harvey divorce is final with Margaret. I believe if the latter had sat tight, she would have ridden through the storm and been able to remain Mrs. Harvey. Margaret still loves him.

It beats me how Greer Garson was able to produce Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's voice so accurately in "Sunrise at Campobello." At the premiere of the movie in New York, it was interesting to see the film-star treatment given Mrs. FDR by the audience. I'll make a prediction now that Greer and Ralph Bellamy as Franklin D. Roosevelt will be in the Oscar race for their performances in this movie. Ditto for Ted Berman and Raphael Blau for their deeply fascinating screen story for "Girl of the Night," from "The Call Girl" study by psychoanalyst Dr. Greenwald.

Audrey Hepburn was outside getting some air when I landed at Tiffany's, Manhattan. Audrey took me inside the famous jewelry shop, where for one day only Paramount was shooting, "Breakfast at Tiffany's." She took off her false gems and I took off mine—and we were draped in the genuine things—Audrey wearing the $500, 000 Tiffany diamond with its matching gold and diamond necklace. I settled for a sapphire and diamond necklace, a square cut diamond ring valued at $130,000, a diamond brooch and diamond drop earrings. The experience was lovely—until we had to give them back, under the watchful eyes of 20 Tiffany salesmen and oodles of detectives. And Henry Platt, great-grandson of the store's founder, Charles L. Tiffany.

Watching us, with rather tired amusement—he had been up until 4 a.m.—was Audrey's co-star George Peppard. "I spent my birthday at Woolworth's yesterday," he told me. And he found another good actor—Walter Matthau—shopping there. George and Audrey will be filming all over New York. Me, I like the Tiffany set best where George, who is "kept" by Pat Neal in the movie, was trying to find a $10 gift for Audrey. They told me it could be done.

Dana Wynter comes back to New York to confer with CBS biggies for three top TV shows. Dana gets her best roles, it seems, on TV. "It's hard work," says Dana. "But the money is good and the roles even better."

The Three Crosby brothers are refusing engagements in December. Bing's boys are booked solid, but want to spend Christmas at home with their families before hitting the road again.

The Non-Vanishing Indian

Tall Steel's Their Meat

By ARCH MACKENZIE

CAUGHNAWAGA. Que (CP)—The Caughnawaga Mohawks flourish where the tall steel grows.

Nimble feet and a head for heights have brought these members of the Iroquois confederacy some share of the 20th-century affluence. The industrial aristocrats of their race, they are a striking Canadian instance of adaptation to non-Indian life.

The Mohawks are peerless steel-construction men in the same way their forefathers held a pre-eminent place in Eastern Canada in the arts of war, politics and agriculture. They roam the United States at $4.55 an hour and up for top men, or tread narrow beams above rivers and concrete city canyons in Canada at lesser rates of pay.

Caughnawaga—it means "above the rapids"—lies across the St. Lawrence River from western Montreal, flanked by Seaway lock superstructures. Its men helped river together. Its preoccupation with steel was accidental.

bridge abutting the reservation at one end—one span was finished in the 1880s and a second in 1912—found young Mohawks peering curiously over their shoulders high above the water. Hiring them was a natural consequence.

"It got so the girls wouldn't go out with you unless you were a steel man," recalls one oldtimer. Today between 1,000 and 1,200 men of Caughnawaga's 3,900 residents are estimated to be in the business.

Caughnawaga is a prime example of the fact that the 565 bands forming Canada's 178,000 Indian population refuse to fit tidily into pat political, economic or social classifications. In many respects it is like a non-Indian municipality.

One reason is its good income and another a long-standing exposure to the European. Caughnawaga has its share of local political warfare. Meetings of the elected 12-member band council, headed by Chief Philip Lazare, usually aren't attended by local Indian affairs branch officials except by request. "I got fed up with the insults," one official said.

But there is little visible sign of the rivalry between elected and hereditary Indian leaders that blew up on the sister reservation at Brantford, Ont., not long ago. Followers of the long-house religion and hereditary chieftains took over the council hall there until ejected by the RCMP.

Leading Caughnawaga long-house exponent is Peter Dione who conducts a virtual one-man war council with barbed pen and tongue in contending that the white man has followed a long trail of deceit and treachery in refusing to honor conditions laid down in old British treaties.

The village itself, aside from the privies and wells, resembles a medium-income suburb. Chief Lazare works for a distillery while his wife, of non-Indian ancestry, tends a filling station and confectionery store.

Teen-age boys turn out with baseball bats and gloves while lacrosse languishes. Trim matrons in sunsuits relax at a beach a stone's throw from the Seaway.

Leasing of land brings a lot of money to individual Indians—one was worth $750,000 on his death a few years ago. At one end of the village Chief Poking Fire, or John McComber, runs his historic Indian village complete with hotdog stand, booths selling tomahawks, headdresses, knife cases, leather beanies and herbal remedies.

His wife Louise is superintendent of the 30-bed hospital, operated by the band itself. She played a leading part in taking over its control from the federal government.

"It broke my heart to see our old folk being sent off the reservation to strange surroundings," she said. Initial operations by the band resulted in a $20,000 debt before things got rolling. Now, she is set on paying it off—a stand she says is opposed by Chief Lazare with whom she wages war.

Drug Price Issue Skirted by Parley

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia doctors dealt gingerly with the controversial problem of drug prices and urged further expansion of the province's rehabilitation and chronic care programs at the annual convention of the B.C. Medical Association.

But the committee reminded doctors they could save their patients considerable expense by prescribing drugs by their generic names rather than by trade names.

On the subject of chronic care, the association made it clear it feels the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service's new $1-a-day chronic care program, introduced Sept. 1, is no solution to the growing problem of chronic illness.

It said more facilities and services are needed and a central agency should be designated to institute and coordinate them.

Tighten-Up Laws On Drunk-Driving

VANCOUVER (CP) — A committee of doctors recommends that impaired-driving laws be tightened to catch drivers who have had only a few drinks.

Doctors Policed In Hospitals?

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. doctors may adopt a system of checks on all work done by doctors in hospitals.

A committee report adopted by the B.C. division of the Canadian Medical Association convention said in part: "From the type of question we see now from the government agencies who are paying the hospitals bills, it would seem almost certain that if the medical profession does not maintain its efforts to raise professional standards in hospitals, the government will almost certainly take over this function."

Alcoholism

Treatment In City Since 1947

A spokesman for Royal Jubilee Hospital last night refuted an earlier statement that no treatment centre for alcoholism exists on Vancouver Island.

George Masters, administrator of the hospital, said it was "unfair" of A. G. Chatten, executive director of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, to make such a statement.

"A treatment centre for alcoholism was first established at Royal Jubilee Hospital in 1947 and has continued to give very good service to the community to the present time," said Mr. Masters.

The local treatment centre has five beds and is attached to the psychiatric ward at Royal Jubilee. The administrator said it was comparatively small, but throughout has been supported without the aid of a government grant.

Mr. Masters said "a very large" government grant goes to the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. whose work at present is confined to the mainland.

Finch-Tregoff Trial Closing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A der conviction and possibly the death penalty. The crewcut Finch, an athletic 42, and his shapely sweetheart, Carole Tregoff, 23, are charged with murder and conspiracy in the July 18, 1959 slaying of Barbara Jean Finch, 36.

Final arguments are under way and the jury of 11 women and one man will soon take over the same task on which an earlier jury deadlocked. The jurors must decide: Did Dr. Bernard Finch shoot his estranged wife in the back by accident during a frantic midnight struggle, as he says, or intentionally, as the prosecution charges?

Grant B. Cooper, Finch's defence counsel, pursued his final impassioned plea Thursday in an effort to save the once-prosperous society physician from a first-degree murder conviction.

Suicide Report Ordered

Names in the News

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mayor Tom Alsbury yesterday asked Police Chief George Archer for a full report on police action in the case of a man who leaped to his death from Lions Gate Bridge Tuesday.

Kenneth Kothlow, 29, jumped from the bridge about 30 minutes after his wife said she warned police he had threatened to jump.

Deputy police chief Gordon Ambrose, who said Wednesday that police cars weren't sent to the bridge until 10:07 p.m., 11 minutes after the bridge patrol notified West Vancouver police of the suicide—said Thursday: "As far as we are concerned the case is closed."

He denied that an officer told the victim's wife to let her husband "go ahead and jump."

RIO DE JANEIRO — Reform candidate Janio Quadros appeared assured of victory in Brazil's presidential election with a lead of 1,400,000 votes as the halfway stage was reached in counting the results of Monday's polling.

LONDON — Lady Dorothy Macmillan, the prime minister's wife, was given a ticket for illegally parking her car. She has 21 days to pay a fine of £2 or fight the case in court.

PARIS — Judy Garland made her first appearance in Paris and scored a rousing success. A capacity crowd heartily applauded each of her 33 songs on a recital which lasted more than 90 minutes.

LOS ANGELES — Musical comedy actress Barbara Perry was awarded $95 monthly temporary alimony after testifying her husband, Bennett James, 35, warned if she didn't give him a divorce she would "end up like Barbara Finch."

SAO PAULO — Pedro Rubens dos Santos, 51, died of a heart attack after losing his home in an election bet with his neighbor, Axis Alias.

Weather Chuckles Witty Asides Rule in New BBC

By STEWART MacLEOD

LONDON (CP)—Horrors! The announcers chaps at the BBC are being asked to call each other by Christian names—on the air.

And that's not all. The management says they can make jokes about the weather forecasts—literally challenging them to find something funny in "overcast with scattered showers."

This new look—or revolution—is coming under a program to make British radio less formal, more friendly, not so stiff.

NO MORE POMP

The 27 announcers on the BBC's domestic service have been told to "make friends with the listeners; put more warmth into your voice; don't be pompous."

And along with "I say, Geoffrey," and laughing at fog patches, they are being encouraged to break from tradition and introduce programs any way they see fit. Long-established formats are being scuttled.

Talk naturally to listeners, says the memo from management, and comment on items after they have been broadcast.

It should have quite an impact on the BBC—known as Old Auntie—which has always kept scripts in the hands of announcers. Every program,

When Richard Boone was first announced as the star of the TV series, "Have Gun—Will Travel," the TV editor of a national magazine wired him in shocked puzzlement:

"Please advise why you are giving up a great show like 'Medic' for a western series?"

The star who was kindly Dr. Conrad Styner one season and the gunman Paladin the next, sent back the laconic reply:

"I prefer doing a show that's on the air!"

'Ernest' Fraud In Beard

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Massachusetts car salesman apparently grew enough of a beard during two weeks of hunting in northern British Columbia to pass for Ernest Hemingway on a visit here last weekend.

Attendants at a downtown hotel said a man identifying himself as the famed author was refused admittance to the hotel cocktail lounge because he was improperly dressed. His name appeared in the hotel register after he took a room for less than a day.

AMERICAN MAN

However, bush pilot Harold Komish of Watson Lake, B.C., said Thursday he thinks "Hemingway" was really Leo LaVallee of Wrentham, Mass.

Komish said he flew LaVallee and Roy Gage of Walpole, Mass., into a hunting camp 125 miles from Watson Lake two weeks ago.

"We went to bring them out last Saturday, and as soon as I saw Gage's companion I said: 'Ernest, where've you come from?'"

Respected Citizen Held In $12,000 Co-op Loss

PENTICTON (CP) — RCMP yesterday arrested Austin Lamb, 50, former secretary-treasurer of the Oliver Co-op Store Association, on charges of misappropriating some $12,000 of association money.

Lamb, a highly-respected citizen of Okanagan Falls, is owner of the Dolly Varden Hotel in that district. He resigned from the Oliver school board two weeks ago. He was also active in church work in the Oliver district.

Peeping-Tom Convictions

High Court Won't Hear Private Eyes' Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada decided yesterday against hearing an appeal by two private investigators who complain that they were convicted in Vancouver as peeping toms.

Tony Petrie and Donald Andsten were convicted last year with loitering at night without lawful excuse on the property of Martha Benekritis. They were acting as investigators for Mr. Benekritis, who was seeking grounds for divorce against his wife.

Petrie and Andsten asked the Supreme Court for leave to appeal their convictions on grounds that they had a lawful excuse for being on the property of Mrs. Benekritis. The court rejected their application, ruling that the two investigators had not presented any point of law on which an appeal could be heard in their particular case.

Crashes, Drinking, Delinquency Rotary Challenges

The growth of traffic accidents, of drinking among young people and of juvenile delinquency were cited yesterday as some of the challenges to Rotarians to participate actively in solving community problems. Virgil R. Lee of Chehalis, Wash., district governor of Rotary International, told the Victoria club that in 1959 there were 500 more pedestrians killed than in 1958, and 900 more automobile passengers killed than in 1958. The figures will continue to grow, he suggested, because by 1970 it is estimated there will be 80,000,000 automobiles in the U.S. "and 112,000,000 persons driving them," compared with 57,000,000 cars now. A Gallup poll last May, he told the club, found that 71 per cent of college students said they drank alcoholic beverages, compared with 66 per cent in 1958; that 67 per cent of high school students admitted drinking, as against 58 per cent in 1958, and that for grade-school students the figures were 48 per cent in 1960

and 46 per cent in 1958. "I don't propose to moralize on these figures, nor do I have a very good idea how to solve the problems," Mr. Lee said. "These are community problems and more importantly, state or provincial and national problems. "But because we are Rotarians, we have leadership and acumen, and we are called upon to help solve these problems and many others like them."

This Time Ald. Edgelow Aimed Away from House

By PETER BRUTON
SAFETY CATCH: When Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow spotted three marauding coons in a tree on his Thetis Lake property he made sure he aimed away from his house when he shot them.

With good reason. Annoyed by the antics of a woodpecker not so long ago he took a pot shot at the bird and promptly severed his television antenna!

TOWN TALK: Latest speculation concerning the appointment of B.C.'s next lieutenant governor is that oil millionaire Frank McMahon will get the job if Defence Minister George Pearkes continues to refuse the post.

In such an event it is expected that Mr. Pearkes will be switched to the less-onerous portfolio of veterans' affairs.

Council Dips Into Fund For Winter Work Money

City council finance committee yesterday recommended taking up to $3,000 from contingency funds so that 11 local improvement projects can be carried out, providing winter work. Total cost of the city-initiated projects if approved will be $37,800.

The committee also recommended dipping into contingency funds for $895 for soundproofing and other work at the headquarters of the new juvenile and family court in the basement of the health and welfare centre on Cook.

Emotional Problems

Help Planned For Children

A volunteer group is being formed in Greater Victoria to provide needed services for children with severe behavior or emotional disturbances.

An organization meeting, open to parents of disturbed children and to all others interested in children, will be held at 1947 Cook Street at 8 p.m. Oct. 14.

A spokesman said yesterday it is hoped from the meeting to form an active group of parents, with advisory help from professionals, similar to those in Toronto and Montreal which have functioned successfully for several years.

"At present there is no provision for suitable education or other needed services for these children," the spokesman said.

Next Friday's meeting will hear a talk on the subject by Dr. Ian S. Kenning. Chairman of the meeting will be W. T. Lawson, formerly a social worker at Thistletown Hospital, Toronto. There will be a discussion period with time for questions.

"Everyone is welcome," said Mr. Lawson.

'High-Rise' Apartment Permit Issued

The eight-storey, 60-suite, $800,000 building will be built by Westcott Construction Ltd. at 240 Douglas, across from Beacon Hill Park.

General height limit on apartment blocks in the city was 35 feet until city council finally approved, at its last meeting, a zoning bylaw amendment creating three special zones in James Bay where apartment blocks will be allowed to rise as high as 12 storeys.

Proposals Still Secret

Opposition Likely To City Hall Plan

By R. O. MARRION

A new offer to build a city hall for Victoria will be presented to city council Thursday.

But, according to indications yesterday, it won't meet wholehearted acceptance.

MOSTLY SECRET

The proposal is still mostly secret even from some aldermen, although apparently the subject of preliminary talks for several weeks between Mayor Percy Scurrell, Ald. Arthur Dowell, Victoria real estate man Milton King and Marwell Construction Company of Vancouver.

But it is believed to include:

- Purchase by the company of the present city hall.
- Construction by the company at the same location of a store, office and city hall building, with one or two of the busiest city hall offices on the ground floor.

- A guarantee of rentals by the city over the amortization period, probably 20 years, so that if stores and private offices fell vacant, the city would have to pay their rentals as well as its own up to an agreed-upon level.

Ald. Dowell, chairman of a special committee appointed last year to consider new city hall possibilities after council rejected a Dominion Construction Co. Ltd. lease-purchase plan, agreed with Mayor Scurrell last night that details should not be released until the new proposal is put before council.

But he indicated he was not entirely enthusiastic about the proposal.

ONE RESPECT

"It has merit in one respect," he said. "It could give a lift to that part of town. It might have a tendency to get some other buildings in that area remodeled. But I'm a little skeptical about it in some respects."

And Ald. M. H. Mooney, other member of the special committee, who went to Vancouver on Wednesday with the mayor, Ald. Dowell and City Manager C. C. Wyatt to confer with Marwell Construction, said that "the plan should be looked into, but I think there is a better proposition than this for the taxpayers."

MAJOR EXPENDITURE

The rental plan would save the city from making a major capital expenditure on construction, and presumably a substantial sum would be received through sale of the property.

But the city would have the expense of furnishing its new quarters and it has been partly for this reason, Ald. Dowell said last night, that he had been opposing taking money from the tax-sale lands funds for other purposes including provision of underground wiring for street lighting.

OUT OF BAG

His antagonism to "raising" the $190,000 fund for $137,000 needed soon for the wiring led yesterday to the "new city hall" cat getting out of the bag.

His remarks and Mayor Scurrell's added confirmation to clues previously observed. "With a new city hall coming up..." said Ald. Dowell. "It (the fund) is a drop in the bucket for that," said City Controller Dennis Young.

DON'T KNOW

"You don't know," said Ald. Dowell. "You don't know."

"It's not a drop in the bucket at all for what we have in mind," said Mayor Scurrell. As finance committee, they and Ald. Hugh Ramsay recommended that $137,000 of the fund be " earmarked" for the wiring, but that every alternative be studied before any money is actually taken from the fund.

The day after Boxing Day will be a holiday in B.C. this year because Christmas Day will fall on a Sunday.

Firemen Plan Open House

Langford volunteer fire department will have an open house Saturday in connection with Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 9 to 15.

Starting at 2.30 p.m. at the firehall on Goldstream Avenue, firemen will display their fire-fighting equipment and show a film. There will be free coffee for adults and free soft drinks for children.

An Assize Court jury yesterday convicted Clarence William Kraft a Vancouver man charged with breaking and entering Peoples' Credit Jewellers at 1104 Douglas in Victoria last March 12 with intent to steal.

He was remanded by Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane to Oct. 14, for sentence.

Trial session yesterday heard a rebuttal of evidence offered Wednesday by the defence.

SPOKEN TO ACCUSED

At that time Evan David Lewis, Victoria transfer man, said he had spoken to accused at 1190 May Street about 10.30 p.m. the day of the break-in—at the time police placed accused outside the jewellers.

The witness said he remembered the day because on that day he had worked at salvaging his boat, which had sunk at Clark Bros. Boat Works Ltd., 10775 Patricia Bay Highway.

Yesterday crown prosecutor Lloyd G. McKenzie called Stanley E. Clark of the boat works and presented documentary evidence that the Lewis boat had sunk Feb. 11, not in March.

ENTIRE CASE

The entire case, said defence counsel Alan Bigelow, hinged on two things: identification and alibi.

He emphasized that four crown witnesses said they had seen accused in the light of street lamps at a downtown corner.

"It is not enough," he said, "to point a finger and say 'That is the man.'"

FIN-POINTING

On the question of alibi, Mr. Bigelow said witness Mrs. Irene Pugsley placed the accused at 1190 May from 9 p.m. on the night of the offence. He said Mr. Lewis had used the boat incident as a means of pin-pointing the date.

He was wrong in the boat date, but since he recalled speaking to the accused his evidence could not be dismissed entirely.

Mr. McKenzie argued for the crown that the evidence of Mr. Clark blew the alibi sky-high.

He also reminded the jury that it was not necessary for a person to take physical part in a break-in to be equally guilty of the offence. Anyone aiding or abetting such an offence was guilty—and he submitted that accused was, in this case, the lookout and driver.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Harrison, 298 Beach Drive, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Margaret June to Mr. Richard King Willis, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter K. Willis, 659 Mount Joy Avenue. The wedding will take place on Saturday, Oct. 15 at 2:30 in the Church of St. George the Martyr, Cadboro Bay.—(Jus-rite Studio.)

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My fiancé and I were leaving a fashionable restaurant last night. A ragged little urchin about nine years old approached us with a winning smile. He said, "Will you please give me a dime, Mister?"

My friend replied "Why should I?" The little boy answered "Because you got lots more money than I have." My friend said "That's not a good enough reason. If you want money go out and earn it. Nobody gives me anything."

A small crowd gathered around to listen. I became very embarrassed. The little boy got angry and shouted "You're an old tightwad," and ran off.

I was annoyed with my friend for having made a scene. He could easily have given the kid a dime and avoided the unpleasantness. I told him it was neither the time nor the place for a lecture on socio-economic ethics. Please tell him he was wrong. He thinks he knows it all.—CHAGRINED.

Dear Chagrined: Sorry, but I'm with him all the way. Giving kids handouts on the street encourages youngsters to believe they can get something for nothing. There's already too much plain and fancy mooching without encouraging more.

When a youngster finds he can collect a fistful of money by just asking he begins to think that work is for fools. The time and place for upholding a good principle is when ever and wherever the opportunity presents itself.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm so mad at my husband that I could go out in the yard and scream. I just learned he lied to me all summer about bus schedules so he could take the car to work every day.

When I think of the times I've hauled my kids to the public swimming pool on street cars and buses I could pull out what hair Alfred has left. He told me a wild story about having to get up at 5:30 in the morning in order to catch a bus that would get him to work on time.

The big stiff was afraid maybe the kids and I would enjoy a ride without him. What do you think I ought to do?—BOILING MAD.

Dear Boiling: There's nothing you can do about the past—except learn from it.

Get a copy of the bus schedules and arrange to have Alfred leave the car a couple of times a week if you need it. I'd say your summer experience gives you a distinct advantage at the bargaining table.

Dear Ann Landers: For a year and a half I've been going steady with a girl whose father hates me like poison. In fact he has ordered her not to go out with me.

We are very much in love and nothing this old buzzard can say or do will keep me away from her. Don't tell me to talk to him. I'm not supposed to set foot on their porch. Please tell me what to do.—WRONG FOOT.

Dear Foot: Why does your girl friend's father "hate you like poison?" You must have some idea. Let me in on it and perhaps I can give you some advice.

It may be that he doesn't consider you fit company for his daughter because you lack good ethical standards.

And he could be right—since you've been going steady with his daughter behind his back for a year and a half.

If alcohol is robbing you or someone you love of health and dignity, and if you are a drinker, read "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request. 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problem. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

WHAT'S COOKING

By LOUISE MOORE

The season of Thanksgiving is once more at hand.

No table can be too beautiful—no food too delicious—no blessing too fervent on Thanksgiving day.

TURKEY DINNER

TO ROAST THE TURKEY

Stuff turkey just before roasting. Sew up the vents and truss carefully. Do not pack in the dressing or it will become soggy while cooking.

Place in roasting pan with wire rack. Do not add water and do not cover.

Brush the breast all over with melted butter—then dip a piece of cheesecloth in melted butter and arrange over top and sides of bird. Cover the bird again in fat or spoon drippings from the pan from time to time, if it dries out. Roast in moderate oven (325°).

Start roasting bird so that roasting time is completed about 25 minutes before meal time to allow for making gravy, removing skewers, string, etc. To test for doneness take hold of the leg bone, and if the thigh bone moves easily the turkey is done. The meat on the drumstick is soft when pressed with fingers.

OLD FASHIONED CRANBERRY SAUCE

Combine in saucepan 4 cups (1 lb.) fresh cranberries, 2 cups sugar and 2 cups water. Bring to a good boil and stir until sugar is all dissolved. Boil until cranberries pop open—about 5 minutes. Remove from heat at once and you have a quart of delicious thick cranberry sauce. For those who like the zesty flavor of sausage in their turkey dressing try this one for a change.

SAUSAGE AND APPLE STUFFING

Fry ½ lb. bulk pork sausage meat in large skillet until nicely browned. Add 2 tbsps. butter and ½ cup finely chopped onions and fry until onions are browned—about 3 minutes. Add 2½ cups packaged precooked rice, the same amount of water, 2 cups diced celery, ½ cup finely chopped celery leaves, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. each pepper and savory, ¼ tsp. each thyme and sage. Mix lightly and just enough to moisten rice. Bring quickly to a boil over high heat.

Cover tightly, remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes. Add 4 cups diced peeled and cored apples tart in flavor. Mix lightly with fork and put stuffing into the 12 to 15 lb. bird. Makes 11 cups of stuffing.

Instead of the traditional pumpkin pie let's serve it in a different mood.

PUMPKIN CHIFFON DESSERT

Split 12 lady fingers; cut off one end and place around sides of an 8-inch spring form pan. Mix 2 envelopes of unflavored gelatin, 1½ cups firmly packed brown sugar, ½ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. nutmeg and ½ tsp. cinnamon in top of double boiler. Stir in 1 cup evaporated milk and 5 egg yolks. Mix well.

Place over boiling water and cook, stirring constantly until gelatin dissolves and mixture is heated through—about 10 minutes. Remove from heat; add 3 cups solid-pack canned pumpkin and chill until mixture mounds when dropped from a spoon.

Beat the 5 egg whites until foamy. Add ½ tsp. cream of tartar and beat until very stiff. Fold gelatin mixture into egg whites. Turn into prepared pan; chill until firm. To unmold, release spring and remove side of mold carefully. If desired, garnish with whipped cream.

Winkie Dolls May Be Next Big Craze

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Winkie Doll has invaded North America and Vancouver businessman Arthur Sereth thinks it's going to be the biggest craze since the hula hoop.

In anticipation of tremendous sales, Mr. Sereth has imported a first shipment of 12,000 of the 12-inch dolls from Japan and plans to airlift another 120,000 before the end of November.

He's the first North American importer to order the Winkie, called Dakkochan Embraceable in Japan because they cling to almost anything. In Japan, they cling to the legs of strippers in burlesque houses, embrace teenagers' arms and handbags, baby buggies and housewives' broom handles.

Mr. Sereth says the demand has so outrun the production of 7,000 a day that many Japanese stores have been forced to issue tickets entitling customers to buy the dolls when the stocks are replenished.

The dolls have plastic and cardboard eyes that appear to wink whenever the angle at which the light hits them is changed.

They are made of black plastic, inflated, with stubby, clinging arms, ring-shaped ears, a red doughnut mouth and a plastic grass skirt.

The girl dolls have bows in their hair-do so you can tell them from the boys.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By HELEN R. HEWSON

At one of the many summer conferences held to discuss momentous questions and come up with some of the answers, a Manitoba professor in group social work called for a revolution on the home front. He advised a group of teen-agers at the Quebec Conference to "take control of your families, not only for your own happiness but also for your parents' happiness."

A survey of the group revealed that only two of the 40 felt free to talk things over with their parents. Less than half could talk to one parent.

This is the unhappy situation that prompted the professor to give this reckless advice.

The professor suggested that parents' memories are short, they have forgotten their own youthful dreams and aspirations; their own struggle for independence.

This makes them seem indifferent, sometimes antagonistic, towards the psychological needs of their children. The need to become independent of parental control is the big problem of adolescence. It is a necessary step if they are to become responsible mature people.

But independence is not acquired easily. It is a gradual process beginning in early childhood and very often mistakes are made because it is a learning process for both the child and his parents.

Parents' memories may be short but they are also afraid to take a chance. They hang on to the controls because they worry about youth's ability to take over.

If parent domination goes beyond reasonable limits and the young folks seize power, be prepared for a little Congo. In any area of life, self-government without training brings confusion and anarchy.

Scarlet Tunics of RCMP Add Color to Wedding

St. Paul's Naval Garrison Church was the scene of a lovely wedding recently when Miss Jean Emily Sim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Sim, 971 Wollaston Street became the bride of Constable Fulton Stephen Prest, RCMP.

with red gladioli and red and white chrysanthemums, reflecting the colors worn by the bridal couple. The groom, best man and ushers wore scarlet tunics.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a classic floor-length gown of corded taffeta with bustle back, sabrina neckline, applique lace trim and lily point sleeves. A rhinestone tiara held her fin-gerly veil, which was "something borrowed" from her sister. Her bouquet was a cascade of tallisman roses.

Bridal attendants were Miss Lucille McBurney, maid-of-honor, and Miss Elsie Jernstet, bridesmaid, who wore gowns of gold brocade taffeta with full, pleated skirts and deep V-necklines at back. They wore rhinestone tiaras and carried bouquets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

Best man was Const. William Foster, RCMP, and ushers were Const. Lorne Musclaw, RCMP and Const. Robert Copeland, RCMP. Members of the Victoria Girls' Drill Team formed a guard of honor as the bridal couple left the church.

A reception was held in the Elks' Home, Cormorant Street, where Mr. Richard Barker proposed the toast to the bride. Master of ceremonies was Mr. H. F. Hockey.

The bride's going-away outfit was an emerald green wool sheath with a white coat, black accessories and a corsage of tallisman roses.

The young couple will make their home at apartment A, 971 Wollaston Street.

Nicholls, Mr. and Mrs. T. Exton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Len Maycock, Mr. and Mrs. E. Walde of Duncan, Miss Barbara Payne, chapter "sweetheart," and Earl Stewart, master councillor. Western RED CEDAR Bevel SIDING

"Keystone" clear kiln-dried siding is the finest available — a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

THE LUMBER

Western red cedar lumber is noted for its exceptional durability, light weight and beautiful color, ranging from almost pure white of the narrow sapwood to reddish brown heartwood. It is very easily worked, is free from pitch, takes and holds stains, paints and enamels excellently, and is superior for gluing. Because of these qualities, Western red cedar is especially adaptable for use as bevel siding for quality homes.

DURABILITY

Western red cedar is one of the most durable species known. Its heartwood is highly resistant to decay, and can be counted on for long and worthy service where conditions favoring decay prevail.

WEATHERING CHARACTERISTICS

Left exposed without paint or other protective finishes, Western red cedar weathers to an intriguing grey color having little or no sheen. It is one of the most stable species of lumber, having very little tendency to cup and pull loose from fastenings when exposed to the weather.

INSULATING QUALITIES

Western red cedar has the highest insulating value of all commonly used soft woods — another point in its favor as siding, and of particular importance when used as roof decking.

National Dish Wrong For 16,000 Reasons

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Restaurant-keeper Hugh Craig of Fort MacLeod, Alta., has given 16,000 reasons why Canada does not have a national dish.

Mr. Craig, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association, said in an interview:

"I don't think the idea of a national dish is a good one because with 16,000 different restaurants, there'd be that many different ways of cooking it."

Craig said. "Operators try to promote regional dishes."

"The Maritimes have their seafoods, Quebec her pea soup. Here at lunch I had barbecued pig tails. I've never had them before. In Winnipeg, it's gold-eye. In Alberta, it's anything that's beef."

'Leo' City of Rumors And Spies of All Hues

LEOPOLDVILLE (TNS) — Three Belgian girls have found a solution to survival in the Congo and have also provided the answer to which of three rival political groups actually rules.

The girls become "proteges" of whatever Congolese politicians are in power, and thus escape persecution in this city which hates Belgians.

This week the girls gave the brushoff to boy friends who had paid homage to ex-Premier Lumumba. They've taken up "student prince" administrators appointed by army boss Col. Mobutu.

LISTEN TO ROCK

The youthful administrators and girls are now seen nightly in Leopoldville's Afro-Negro club where they listen to rock 'n' roll, dance the Charleston and drink beer until early morning hours.

During the day, while the boys plan press conferences and act as the government, the girls hang about hotel bars ignoring "wrong" Congolese and accepting drinks from "right" ones.

FEW ERRORS

In the past the girls have taken up with Lumumba-ites, then with politicians of President Kasavubu, then back to Lumumba chaps, and now with "student princes." They seldom make political errors.

They are petite blondes, generally wearing skintight pedalpushers. They dislike Europeans here. Meanwhile, as Leopoldville's innumerable politicians swing into shouting contests instead of shooting matches, flocks of fringe characters and adventurers have plucked up the nerve to visit the Congo. Leo is a city of spies. The plump blonde cashier behind a hotel bar is known as a Kasavubu agent, telling him rumors and sending a and receiving cables for him. (Col. Mobutu has denied politicians the use of cable facilities).

LUMUMBA AGENT

The cashier's part-time helper is also an agent—but for Lumumba. She sends and gets his overseas cables.

Graduates 'Barely' Engineers

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. G. M. Shrum of the University of British Columbia's physics department says North America is not short of engineers—just good engineers.

Dr. Shrum said many engineers barely pass university courses and barely manage to perform their jobs. They were really technicians rather than engineers.

Dr. Shrum was speaking to American and Canadian engineers attending the fourth biennial Engineering Education Conference.

It's That Time Again

Mail Early, Avoid Rush

With Christmas only a few weeks away post office officials are urging that Christmas letters and parcels for overseas destinations be mailed early.

Fully completed customs declaration forms must be attached to parcels addressed abroad.

NO MATCHES

Officials point out it is against the law to mail matches, lighter fluid or any inflammable substance.

Deadline for letters and parcels for Australia, New Zealand and Fiji is Nov. 7, and for Hong Kong and Japan, Nov. 15.

AIR MAIL DEADLINE

Deadline for air mail parcels, Philippines, Dec. 5, New Zealand and Fiji, Dec. 7, European continent, Dec. 8, Great Britain, Hong Kong and Japan, Dec. 10, Australia, Dec. 13.

Final date for airmail letters, Philippines, Dec. 7, New Zealand and Fiji, Dec. 9, European continent, Dec. 10, Japan and Hong Kong, Dec. 11, Great Britain, Dec. 13, Australia, Dec. 15.

False Teeth Licence List Held Over

The list of licences granted to dental technicians allowing them to bypass dentists and sell false teeth direct to the public will be held up until all applications have been processed.

Some 120 applications have been received by the government-appointed five-man board of inquiry headed by Dr. Gordon Schrum of the University of British Columbia.

Licences already granted total 48 but none have been released pending the board's findings on all applications. Vancouver lawyer R. R. Keith, a board member said yesterday he had no figures available at the moment on the number of applications filed by Victoria dental technicians.

Cultivate Curiosity, Initiative School's Role in Development

ST. ADELE, Que. (CP) —

Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, president of the University of British Columbia, said Thursday that a child's need for a sense of security and purpose extends beyond childhood into teen-age groups — "the lost segment of our society."

Teen-agers, in addition to needing a sense of purpose and participation, need moral values, Dr. MacKenzie told 400 delegates to the Canadian Conference on Children.

It was essential that parents put these values before the way of helping children develop such a sense of security and belonging, they be treated by parents as partners in making decisions affecting the family as a unit.

Dr. MacKenzie was one of the final speakers at the closing session of the four-day conference.

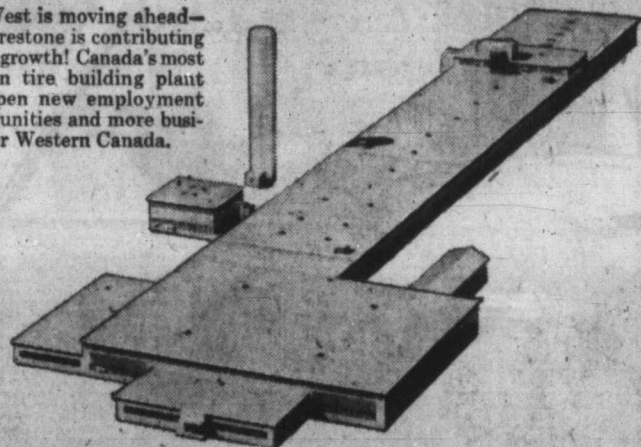

Msgr. Irene Lussier, rector of the University of Montreal, said children have to be given a sense of security to counter the confusion caused by today's modern living.

Watches Grabbed In Raid

A smash and grab raid at a Sidney jewelry store early yesterday morning netted thieves six watches worth $450 and left a hole eight inches in diameter in the display window.

Though the watches and the window were partly covered by insurance, proprietor of the store E. F. "Ted" Martin said he wouldn't get too much out of it.

Sidney RCMP reported the store at 2392 Beacon Avenue secure at 1 a.m. Neighbors heard dogs barking in the area about 4.30 a.m.

Mr. Martin previously operated a store in Edmonton which was broken into four times. It was the first smash and grab theft in the village for the past five years.

King Fisherman Contest

Comox, Alberni Closed No Tyee in Tyee Pool

Today's King Fisherman entries see the last of the tyee salmon for this year, with tabulation of fish caught over last weekend during the final fish-off derby of the Alberni Valley Tyee Club.

Alberni Inlet waters were closed to fishing last Sunday at midnight. Comox Bay was closed earlier and there are no tyee in the Tyee Pool at Campbell River.

Some tyee are being caught by river anglers, but for the main part they are throwing them back after a terrific fishing battle.

Fisheries officials say coho are now being caught in fair numbers by commercial fishermen at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait, and those fish should be showing in Port Renfrew and Sooke areas.

Rivals Debate Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)—After much negotiation and argument between political camps and harassed network officials, the scene was set for the second "great debate" on television tonight. (See TV listings for time.)

And judging from their recent speeches, vice-president Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy, were likely to be appreciably more combative than they were in their first encounter.

Because Nixon did not appear to his best physical advantage in the first debate, the vice-president's campaign associates approached tonight's show with utmost care and extensive preparation.

Broadcasting industry officials predicted tonight's audience would be even larger than for the first debate when an estimated 73.5 million viewers tuned in.

Because of the large audience and the resultant political impact, representatives of both candidates seemed to be taking a much more intense interest in plans for tonight. The Nixon staff was determined that the vice-president would have the benefit of better makeup and lighting than on Sept. 26 when many viewers thought Nixon looked unwell.

Nixon's makeup will be done by Stan Lawrence, a free-lance makeup expert from New York. The vice-president's makeup in Chicago was handled by Everett Hart, a TV producer working for the Nixon organization.

According to Ted Rogers, Nixon's chief TV adviser, Hart used a compressed powder cake sold in drug stores for men who need a shave and don't have time for it. Tonight's makeup job will be more thorough.

Kennedy used no makeup in Chicago and was not expected to do so tonight.

Car Drags Constable

VANCOUVER (CP)—An RCMP constable was dragged 200 feet by a stolen car Thursday, but escaped with only his uniform torn.

The constable approached the car when it stopped for a light in Burnaby, then grabbed the door post when the car began to move. He hung on until the car reached an estimated speed of 50 miles an hour before letting go.

Smallpox Air Scare Starts Huge Probe

LONDON (AP)—International quarantine inspectors started investigations from Ceylon to Canada Thursday night after an airline passenger developed smallpox.

The ministry of health said the passenger, a Dutch businessman, was taken to a smallpox hospital near London Thursday two days after arriving from Ceylon. Between times he had visited London's Wormwood Scrubs prison and the whole jail was alerted to the danger.

SALVADOR AGRON

LUIS HERNANDEZ

Teen-Agers Sentenced To Death

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two teen-agers, known as "the Cape Man" and "the Umbrella Man," were sentenced yesterday to die in Sing Sing prison's electric chair. They were among the youngest persons ever to face execution in New York State.

The killers, members of a street gang called the Vampires, terrorized New York's Hell's Kitchen area in a summer juvenile crime wave in 1959.

They are Salvador Agron, 16, the Cape Man, and Luis Hernandez, 17, the Umbrella Man.

The pair and four other street toughs attacked a group of youngsters in a playground Aug. 30, 1959, fatally stabbing two boys and wounding a third.

Agron was called Dracula and the Cape Man because he wore a red-lined cape and carried a foot-long Mexican dagger with a silver handle.

Vast Medical Stockpile Ready for Atomic Attack

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP)—Canada is stockpiling $18,000,000 worth of medical supplies and specially-designed "packaged" hospital and treatment centres in case of nuclear attack.

Dr. R. D. Hardman, chief of the emergency health services branch, federal health department, told Atlantic province mayors here Thursday that $11,000,000 worth of equipment and supplies are on hand. Another $7,000,000 is being spent on additional supplies.

He said 620 treatment centres and portable hospitals are being spotted across the country in every province for quick movement to evacuation areas in event of a nuclear attack.

Dr. Hardman, a medical doctor, said that should an attack come there would be hundreds of thousands of patients. Supplies must be on hand to save their lives. Most pharmaceutical companies were in target areas and would be destroyed in a nuclear attack. It was up to governments to make sure medicines would be available.

Dentists, veterinarians, laboratory technicians and other medical experts must be trained, he said, to help take the tremendous wartime loads off doctors by treating less serious casualties.

Neighborhoods would be provided with health haversacks equipped for minor care of people being evacuated.

The 200 packaged hospitals, especially boxed for long storage, will be shipped to schools, churches or other buildings for setting up in evacuation periods. Each will contain 200 beds, reception rooms and three operating rooms. They will have their own power and water supplies.

These will be augmented by 420 smaller advanced-treatment centres, available in 10 regional depots in every province by December. Eighteen model units now are available for training purposes.

Spread out across the provinces will be 1,200 packaged disaster units containing equipment and supplies to supplement hospital facilities.

A portable clothing sorting machine is being designed to handle rapid distribution of clothes, blankets and other covering equipment.

Lawyer Banned From Own Home By RCMP Guard

REGINA (CP)—Dr. M. C. Shumatcher, his house and law office guarded by the RCMP, agreed Thursday to move into a hotel while a court considers his motion to have two search warrants quashed.

The hearing will be held today. Meantime the court ordered nothing can be taken from the office or home and police moved in to see that the order is carried out.

The warrants were issued to search the law office of Shumatcher, Moss and Laverty and the home of Shumatcher, senior partner in the firm.

FAMOUS LAWYER
Dr. Shumatcher faces 11 criminal charges arising from statements made in 1958 during investigations by the Saskatchewan Securities Commission into the dealings of two firms, Columbia Metals and Western Bond and Share.

Seven of the charges allege the lawyer counselled or procured certain people to give false evidence before the commission. Four others concern obstruction of justice, counselling a person to make false declarations and procuring certain persons to give false information to the commission.

WARRANTS QUASHED
Earlier Thursday Chief Justice Emmett Hall of Court of Queen's Bench quashed two search warrants which RCMP and commission investigators used Tuesday in an effort to get certain documents from the legal firm's offices.

During the night and Thursday, Dr. Shumatcher and his partners were unable to use the office which was being used by RCMP and security investigators. Dr. Shumatcher and his partners set up office, complete with secretaries, in the Regina court house.

ANOTHER WARRANT
However, immediately after the two warrants were quashed, the securities commission brought another two into play.

One concerned the lawyer's home and another the office. The RCMP moved into the premises again Thursday.

The warrants used Thursday were issued Wednesday by Magistrate L. F. Bennet.

Dr. Shumatcher is to appear in court Oct. 11 on the 11 criminal counts to be prosecuted by the SSC.

The hearing contesting the validity of the warrants brought into play Thursday resumed this morning when special prosecutor N. I. Mathews of Toronto is expected to be admitted to the Saskatchewan bar.

Holiday Dooms 35

OTTAWA (CP)—Thanksgiving weekend traffic in Canada will claim 35 lives, the Canadian Highway Safety Council forecast Thursday night.

If borne out, this would be one of the lowest fatality totals in years for the long October weekend. Last year 37 persons were killed on highways, compared with 32 in 1958 and 51 in 1957.

The forecast period covers the 78 hours from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday.

Macmillan's Opinion

Summit Talks Likely After U.S. Election

Khrushchev Will Agree British Leader Thinks

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Thursday he believed Premier Khrushchev would agree to another Summit conference some time after the American presidential elections.

Macmillan conferred with Khrushchev for 1½ hours on the eve of his departure by air from New York Wednesday. He held a cabinet meeting shortly after his arrival this afternoon, reporting in detail on his 10 days of talks inside and outside the United Nations.

Macmillan made these points to reporters at London Airport:

1. He is more hopeful about East-West relations than he was after the abortive Summit talks in Paris last May.

2. Khrushchev "overplayed his hand" at the UN General Assembly. "I do not think Mr. Khrushchev had it all his own way. He thought he would rather stampede the thing and pinch the whole show."

3. Britain, as leader of the Commonwealth, must stand firm. "It is no good our throwing away our weapons and running around in disorder."

4. East-West problems should be disentangled one by one through "patient negotiation."

5. It would be "a terrible mistake" to give in to Soviet pressure and make structural changes in the United Nations at this time. "Once you do that, the Russians would get the whole thing on the run."

6. Khrushchev's attack on UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld had been "a great failure."

Asked if the new Summit talks would take place early in the new year, Macmillan replied:

"I cannot tell. I think there will have to be a meeting for negotiation of some of the outstanding questions which we failed to deal with in Paris last May. I hope we shall be able to organize a meeting for that purpose."

"I am very hopeful. I think the Russians will agree to it."

Cabinet Shuffle Oct. 11

OTTAWA (UPI)—The long-awaited cabinet shuffle, delayed by international affairs and the illness of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's mother, will take place Tuesday, Oct. 11.

The prime minister, who announced the date before entering a cabinet meeting Thursday, said the shuffle will be coupled with the appointment of a new lieutenant-governor for British Columbia. This all but confirmed persistent reports that Defence Minister George Pearkes would resign from the cabinet to accept the post.

Republic a Certainty For South Africans

'Acceptance Issue Stalled Until May

OTTAWA (CP)—The decision on whether South Africa will—or can—remain in the Commonwealth probably will not be taken until May, giving both the Commonwealth and the country more than six months to adjust to its new republic status.

Canadian government officials said this waiting period may produce a change in South African racial policies, or at least the production of a formula whereby South Africa can remain associated with the Commonwealth in a new way.

PRIME MINISTER
... winner

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—South African nationalists Thursday night clinched their long battle to make the country a republic.

The South African Press Association said final figures from all 156 voting districts gave the republic a majority of 73,980 votes. The breakdown was 849,958 for and 775,978 against.

The last constituencies to be counted, all strongholds of nationalist Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd, assured the success of his plan for a republic.

The pro-republic forces shot into the lead Thursday night after overcoming an early lead of more than 150,000 votes held by anti-republic groups.

The foes of the move to make the country a republic had their main support among city-dwelling, English-speaking segments of the population, who voted early.

But once the results started coming in from the strongly-nationalistic, Afrikaans farming areas, the early anti-republic lead was quickly erased.

Nanaimo 'Playground' Excites Mayor

NANAIMO—The Victoria Daily Colonist formed the basis for a major part of a speech by Nanaimo's Mayor Pete Maffeo to the Junior Chamber of Commerce when he praised the "Outdoor" articles of Alec Merriman.

Mayor Maffeo, exuberant and enthusiastic about his favorite topic, painted a vivid picture to the Jaycees of what could be the greatest tourist attraction in the Pacific Northwest... Nanaimo's environs.

Using Merriman's article in Thursday's Colonist as an example, he described the entire Vancouver Island as "the playground of the Pacific Northwest" and said that right behind Nanaimo are 30 lakes in a 20-mile radius.

"The 'off the cuff' speaker told his audience of his plans 20 years ago to stock each lake and have a limit set for catches on each one and then to invite a big-name movie star to the area to fish as a publicity gimmick. He said that if this was done even today it would be the making of the entire island."

to their children and explain how the "sky's the limit and they can go to the top."

He pointed out that ours is a country where anyone can become a councillor, mayor, MLA or MP, and we have the right community to breed such men.

Crashes, Drinking, Delinquency Rotary Challenges

The growth of traffic accidents, of drinking among young people and of juvenile delinquency were cited yesterday as some of the challenges to Rotarians to participate actively in solving community problems. Virgil R. Lee of Chehalis, Wash., district governor of Rotary International, told the Victoria club that in 1959 there were 500 more pedestrians killed than in 1958, and 900 more automobile passengers killed than in 1958. The figures will continue to grow, he suggested, because by 1970 it is estimated there will be 80,000,000 automobiles in the U.S. "and 112,000,000 persons driving them," compared with 57,000,000 cars now. A Gallup poll last May, he told the club, found that 71 per cent of college students said they drank alcoholic beverages, compared with 66 per cent in 1958; that 67 per cent of high school students admitted drinking, as against 58 per cent in 1958, and that for grade-school students the figures were 48 per cent in 1960

and 46 per cent in 1958. "I don't propose to moralize on these figures, nor do I have a very good idea how to solve the problems," Mr. Lee said. "These are community problems and more importantly, state or provincial and national problems. "But because we are Rotarians, we have leadership and acumen, and we are called upon to help solve these problems and many others like them."

Mayor of Nanaimo Tests for Reaction

NANAIMO—Junior Chamber of Commerce members were told they would be guinea pigs Thursday evening and seemed to enjoy exploring the many lanes that Mayor Pete Maffeo led them along to appreciate their home city.

The chief magistrate, as guest speaker at the monthly dinner, told of many municipal government projects and problems and said that one thing the council is attempting to do is turn the present city cemetery into a lawn type of which the community could be proud. He said the job could supply work for many manual laborers under a winter works project if Ottawa approves.

Coon-Killing Ald. Edgelow Aimed Away from House

By PETER BRUTON
SAFETY CATCH: When Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow spotted three marauding coons in a tree on his Thetis Lake property he made sure he aimed away from his house when he shot them.

With good reason. Annoyed by the antics of a woodpecker not so long ago he took a pot shot at the bird and promptly severed his television antenna!

TOWN TALK: Latest speculation concerning the appointment of B.C.'s next lieutenant governor is that oil millionaire Frank McMahon will get the job if Defence Minister George Pearkes continues to refuse the post.

In such an event it is expected that Mr. Pearkes will be switched to the less-onerous portfolio of veterans' affairs.

Earlier Potshot at Bird Severed His TV Antenna

BLUE NOTE: First concert in the Vancouver Island Exhibition Association's annual jazz festival at Nanaimo wasn't what organizers would call a "real gone" success. Only about 200 turned out to hear "King of the Vibes" Lionel Hampton.

FINE DISCOVERY: A boost for Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau commissioner William Hawkins and his touring character Captain Discovery came yesterday from Comox MLA Dan Campbell.

Whether Captain Discovery is authentic or not he is pretty typical of the sort of character we need," said Dan, who was down here on business for his riding. "This attitude that Vancouver Island ends at the Malahat Chalet must stop."

He added that the whole of Vancouver Island should participate together "financially and otherwise" in a unified program aimed at bringing tourists here.

UP IN AIR: Remember those big, multi-colored balloons which were always running out of steam along Douglas during the 1958 centennial celebrations? Back from a trip to Seattle Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow is "hopeful" that he's finally found a buyer—the "Century 21" exposition to be held in Seattle in 1962.

BUCKLE DOWN: City police who scurried to a large city department store after alarm bells rang last night did not realize that one of their number was engaged in a tense little drama.

Const. George Buckle, using a service elevator, was trapped between floors. Visions of having to spend the whole night cooped up in the cage spurred him on to greater efforts and he finally got the elevator moving again.

Council Dips Into Fund For Winter Work Money

City council finance committee yesterday recommended taking up to $3,000 from contingency funds so that 11 local improvement projects can be carried out, providing winter work.

Total cost of the city-initiated projects if approved will be $37,800.

The committee also recommended dipping into contingency funds for $895 for soundproofing and other work at the headquarters of the new juvenile and family court in the basement of the health and welfare centre on Cook.

Emotional Problems

Help Planned For Children

A volunteer group is being formed in Greater Victoria to provide needed services for children with severe behavior or emotional disturbances.

An organization meeting, open to parents of disturbed children and to all others interested in children, will be held at 1947 Cook Street at 8 p.m. Oct. 14.

A spokesman said yesterday it is hoped from the meeting to form an active group of parents, with advisory help from professionals, similar to those in Toronto and Montreal which have functioned successfully for several years.

"At present there is no provision for suitable education or other needed services for these children" the spokesman said.

Next Friday's meeting will hear a talk on the subject by Dr. Ian S. Kenning. Chairman of the meeting will be W. T. Lawson, formerly a social worker at Thistletown Hospital, Toronto. There will be a discussion period with time for questions.

"Everyone is welcome," said Mr. Lawson.

'High-Rise' Apartment Permit Issued

A building permit for Victoria's first "high-rise" apartment block was issued yesterday at city hall.

The eight-storey, 60-suite, $600,000 building will be built by Westcott Construction Ltd. at 240 Douglas, across from Beacon Hill Park.

General height limit on apartment blocks in the city was 35 feet until city council finally approved, at its last meeting, a zoning bylaw amendment creating three special zones in James Bay where apartment blocks will be allowed to rise as high as 12 storeys.

Proposals Still Secret

Opposition Likely To City Hall Plan

By R. O. MARRION

A new offer to build a city hall for Victoria will be presented to city council Thursday.

But, according to indications yesterday, it won't meet wholehearted acceptance.

MOSTLY SECRET

The proposal is still mostly secret even from some aldermen, although apparently the subject of preliminary talks for several weeks between Mayor Percy Scurrell, Ald. Arthur Dowell, Victoria real estate man Milton King and Maywell Construction Company of Vancouver.

But it is believed to include: ● Purchase by the company of the present city hall. ● Construction by the company at the same location of a store, office and city hall building, with one or two of the busiest city hall offices on the ground floor.

● A guarantee of rentals by the city over the amortization period, probably 20 years, so that if stores and private offices fell vacant, the city would have to pay their rentals as well as its own up to an agreed-upon level.

Ald. Dowell, chairman of a special committee appointed last year to consider new city hall possibilities after council rejected a Dominion Construction Co. Ltd. lease-purchase plan, agreed with Mayor Scurrell last night that details should not be released until the new proposal is put before council.

But he indicated he was not entirely enthusiastic about the proposal.

ONE RESPECT

"It has merit in one respect," he said. "It could give a lift to that part of town. It might have a tendency to get some other buildings in that area remodeled. But I'm a little skeptical about it in some respects."

And Ald. M. H. Mooney, another member of the special committee, who went to Vancouver on Wednesday with the mayor, Ald. Dowell and City Manager C. C. Wyatt to confer with Maxwell Construction, said that "the plan should be looked into, but I think there is a better proposition than this for the taxpayers."

MAJOR EXPENDITURE

The rental plan would save the city from making a major capital expenditure on construction, and presumably a substantial sum would be received through sale of the property.

But the city would have the expense of furnishing its new quarters and it has been partly for this reason, Ald. Dowell said last night, that he had been opposing taking money from the tax-sale lands funds for other purposes including provision of underground wiring for street lighting.

OUT OF BAG

His antagonism to "raising" the $190,000 fund for $137,000 needed soon for the wiring led yesterday to the "new city hall" cat getting out of the bag.

His remarks and Mayor Scurrell's added confirmation to clues previously observed. "With a new city hall coming up..." said Ald. Dowell. "It (the fund) is a drop in the bucket for that," said City Comptroller Dennis Young.

DON'T KNOW

"You don't know," said Ald. Dowell. "You don't know."

"It's not a drop in the bucket at all for what we have in mind," said Mayor Scurrell.

As finance committee, they and Ald. Hugh Ramsay recommended that $137,000 of the fund be " earmarked" for the wiring, but that every alternative be studied before any money is actually taken from the fund.

Around the Island

Road Bypass Yarn Denied

NANAIMO—A rumor that has been prevalent in the Hub City for some time has been squelched by Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi.

The cabinet member denied the report that a new highway bypass would be built around Nanaimo.

The rumor had it that the Trans-Canada Highway would leave the present route at Chase River, taking a line along the base of Mount Benson near the army camp and rejoin the new highway north of the city in the Wellington area.

Mr. Gagliardi said: "I don't know anything about it. Somebody may have run a line or something, but nothing like that could ever be done before it would all come to me and I have no such knowledge."

know anything about it. Somebody may have run a line or something, but nothing like that could ever be done before it would all come to me and I have no such knowledge."

PENDER ISLAND—Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston told a Pender Island audience this week that while the lumber market was poor at the present time, pulp and paper markets were good, and that he expected a general pick up in B.C.'s chief industry next year.

He said there had been a 50 per cent increase of Canadian lumber products on the export to British markets during the past year.

He was speaking at a meeting sponsored by the Pender Island Chamber of Commerce, in the Port Washington Hall.

He said 70 per cent of all land on the Penders is classified as farm land, and timber yield had to equal at least 2,000 board feet per acre before being classed as timber land.

DUNCAN—Professional photographer Charles Worsley is puzzled over a theft from his studio—10 rolls of half-inch tape containing 72 yards on each.

"The question is, why Scotch tape?" he asked. Other, more expensive equipment, was not touched.

It was the second theft from his new Trunk Road studio. Two months ago a camera, typewriter and some film were taken.

NANAIMO—A centennial project will officially be turned over to the city of Nanaimo next week.

The Kiwanis Club, one of the smallest service clubs in the area as far as membership is concerned, have completed the work on the Pioneer Cemetery in changing it to a park. The rededication ceremony is scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 16, and municipal and provincial dignitaries will be invited to witness the event.

The cemetery, at the corner of Wallace Street and Comox Road, in the downtown area of Nanaimo, was a tangled mass of brush and weeds and broken tombstones.

It has been transformed into a grassy park with flower beds and the tombstones set into a serpentine wall that borders the park.

LAKE COWICHAN—A car was severely damaged here late Wednesday night on South Shore Road when it rolled off the highway just east of Mesachie Lake.

Allister Fraser MacDonald, Riverside Road here, was returning from work at Honey-moon Bay at the time of the accident, police said.

He received bruises and minor abrasions.

NANAIMO—The Thanksgiving holiday has forced a postponement of the next Nanaimo City Council meeting.

The city fathers, who meet every second Monday, were scheduled to sit in the council chambers next Monday evening. However city hall officials have announced that the meeting is postponed one week and will be held on Oct. 17 instead.

DUNCAN—Alma Susan Hunter, 46, will be buried tomorrow after funeral services starting at 1:30 p.m.

Born at East Wellington, she lived at Nanaimo, Parksville and Alberni before coming here 18 years ago. She was an active worker for the Old Age Pensioners' Association.

Surviving are her husband, Norman; mother, Mrs. Annie Tatro, East Wellington; a brother, Stanley Lewer, Vancouver.

Burial will be in Cedar Valley Memorial Gardens.

NANAIMO—Teachers in School District 68 have demanded a 12 per cent increase this year. However the board is opposing the bid.

Board salary committee chairman Stan Wardill described the demands as unrealistic. He said that the new demands would mean an increase for taxpayers of about $150,000.

The trustees of a special meeting have voted to return the demands to the teachers for "more realistic proposals." The teachers' proposed wage scale would give top secondary teachers $9,200 a year compared with $7,850 at the present time.

Medical Stockpile Ready for A-War

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP)—Canada is stockpiling $18,000,000 worth of medical supplies and specially-designed "packaged" hospital and treatment centres in case of nuclear attack.

Dr. R. D. Hardman, chief of the emergency health services branch, federal health department, told Atlantic province mayors here Thursday that $11,000,000 worth of equipment and supplies are on hand. Another $7,000,000 is being spent on additional supplies.

He said 620 treatment centres and portable hospitals are being spotted across the country in every province for quick movement to evacuation areas in event of a nuclear attack.

Dr. Hardman, a medical doctor, said that should an attack come there would be hundreds of thousands of patients. Supplies must be on hand to save their lives. Most pharmaceutical companies were in target areas and would be destroyed in a nuclear attack. It was up to governments to make sure medicines would be available.

Dentists, veterinarians, laboratory technicians and other medical experts must be trained, he said, to help take the tremendous wartime loads off doctors by treating less serious casualties.

Neighborhoods would be provided with health haversacks equipped for minor care of people being evacuated.

The 200 packaged hospitals, especially boxed for long storage, will be shipped to schools, churches or other buildings for setting up in evacuation periods. Each will contain 200 beds, reception rooms and three operating rooms. They will have their own power and water supplies.

These will be augmented by 420 smaller advanced treatment centres, available in 10 regional depots in every province by December. Eighteen model units now are available for training purposes.

Rivals Debate Today

WASHINGTON (UPI)

—After much negotiation and argument between political camps and harassed network officials, the scene was set for the second "great debate" on television tonight. (See TV listings for time.)

And judging from their recent speeches, Vice-President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy, were likely to be appreciably more combative than they were in their first encounter.

UTMOST CARE

Because Nixon did not appear to his best physical advantage in the first debate, the vice-president's campaign associates approached tonight's show with utmost care and extensive preparation.

Broadcasting industry officials predicted tonight's audience would be even larger than for the first debate when an estimated 73.5 million viewers tuned in.

BETTER MAKEUP

Because of the large audience and the resultant political impact, representatives of both candidates seemed to be taking a much more intense interest in plans for tonight. The Nixon staff was determined that the vice-president would have the benefit of better makeup and lighting than on Sept. 26 when many viewers thought Nixon looked unwell.

FREE-LANCE

Nixon's makeup will be done by Stan Lawrence, a free-lance makeup expert from New York. The vice-president's makeup in Chicago was handled by Everett Hart, a TV producer working for the Nixon organization.

Kennedy used no makeup in Chicago and was not expected to do so tonight.

Car Drags Constable 200 Feet

VANCOUVER (CP) — An RCMP constable was dragged 200 feet by a stolen car Thursday, but escaped with only his uniform torn.

The constable approached the car when it stopped for a light in Burnaby, then grabbed the door post when the car began to move. He hung on until the car reached an estimated speed of 50 miles an hour before letting go.

Teen-Agers Sentenced To Death

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two teen-agers, known as "the Cape Man" and the "Umbrella Man," were sentenced yesterday to die in Sing Sing prison's electric chair. They were among the youngest persons ever to face execution in New York State.

The killers, members of a street gang called the Vampires, terrorized New York's Hell's Kitchen area in a summer juvenile crime wave in 1959.

They are Salvador Agron, 16, the Cape Man, and Luis Hernandez, 17, the Umbrella Man.

The pair and four other street toughs attacked a group of youngsters in a playground Aug. 30, 1959, fatally stabbing two boys and wounding a third. Agron was called Dracula and the Cape Man because he wore a red-lined cape and carried a foot-long Mexican dagger with a silver handle.

Legal Fight

Lawyer Banned From Own Home By RCMP Guard

REGINA (CP)—Dr. M. C. Shumiatcher, his house and law office guarded by the RCMP, agreed Thursday to move into a hotel while a court considers his motion to have two search warrants quashed.

The hearing will be held today. Meantime the court ordered nothing can be taken from the office or home and police moved in to see that the order is carried out.

The warrants were issued to search the law office of Shumiatcher, Moss and Lawry and the home of Shumiatcher, senior partner in the firm.

Dr. Shumiatcher faces 11 criminal charges arising from statements made in 1958 during investigations by the Saskatchewan Securities Commission into the dealings of two firms, Columbia Metals and Western Bond and Share.

Seven of the charges allege the lawyer counselled or procured certain people to give false evidence before the commission. Four others concern obstruction of justice, counselling a person to make false declarations and procuring certain persons to give false information to the commission.

WARRANTS QUASHED

Earlier Thursday Chief Justice Emmett Hall of Court of Queen's Bench quashed two search warrants which RCMP and commission investigators used Tuesday in an effort to get certain documents from the legal firm's offices.

During the night and Thursday, Dr. Shumiatcher and his partners were unable to use the office which was being used by RCMP and security investigators. Dr. Shumiatcher and his partners set up office, complete with secretaries, in the Regina court house.

ANOTHER WARRANT

However, immediately after the two warrants were quashed, the securities commission brought another two into play.

One concerned the lawyer's home and another the office. The RCMP moved into the premises again Thursday.

The warrants used Thursday were issued Wednesday by Magistrate L. F. Bence.

Dr. Shumiatcher is to appear in court Oct. 11 on the 11 criminal counts to be prosecuted by the SSC.

The hearing contesting the validity of the warrants brought into play Thursday resumed this morning when special prosecutor N. I. Mathews of Toronto is expected to be admitted to the Saskatchewan bar.

Rain Blamed For Death

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — Heavy rain which impaired visibility was blamed Thursday night in the death of Mrs. Doris Elliott, 57, of Vancouver, struck by a car as she walked behind another vehicle to go to a bus shelter here.

'Cold' Wave In Series City

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A wave of "colds" hit Pittsburgh school children Wednesday for the opening of the World Series. One school had 363 students absent, another 172 and a third 126.

Republic a Certainty For South Africans

'Acceptance Issue Stalled Until May

OTTAWA (CP)—The decision on whether South Africa will—or can—remain in the Commonwealth probably will not be taken until May, giving both the Commonwealth and the country more than six months to adjust to its new republic status.

Canadian government officials said this waiting period may produce a change in South African racial policies, or at least the production of a formula whereby South Africa can remain associated with the Commonwealth in a new way.

De Gaulle Scores UN

LA TOUR DU PIN, France (Reuters) — President de Gaulle warned Thursday night that France would not let anybody "force her hand" in Algeria and scored the United Nations as "a kind of permanent scandal."

The president said France did not help found the United Nations so that it should "degenerate into a kind of permanent scandal, with intemperate speeches, absurd outbiddings and bellicose dangers."

PRIME MINISTER
MACMILLAN
... long talk

Mac Believes K Will Agree

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan said Thursday he believed Premier Khrushchev would agree to another Summit conference some time after the American presidential elections.

Macmillan conferred with Khrushchev for 1½ hours on the eve of his departure by air from New York Wednesday. He held a cabinet meeting shortly after his arrival Thursday afternoon, reporting in detail on his 10 days of talks inside and outside the United Nations.

Macmillan made these points to reporters at London Airport:

1. He is more hopeful about East-West relations than he was after the abortive Summit talks in Paris last May.

2. Khrushchev "overplayed his hand" at the UN General Assembly. "I do not think Mr. Khrushchev had it all his own way. He thought he would rather stampede the thing and pinch the whole show."

3. Britain, as leader of the Commonwealth, must stand firm. "It is no good our throwing away our weapons and running around in disorder."

4. East-West problems should be disentangled one by one through "patient negotiation."

5. It would be "a terrible mistake" to give in to Soviet pressure and make structural changes in the United Nations at this time. "Once you do that, the Russians would get the whole thing on the run."

6. Khrushchev's attack on UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld had been "a great failure."

Cabinet Shuffle Oct. 11

OTTAWA (UPI)—The long-awaited cabinet shuffle, delayed by international affairs and the illness of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's mother, will take place Tuesday, Oct. 11.

The prime minister, who announced the date before entering a cabinet meeting Thursday, said the shuffle will be coupled with the appointment of a new lieutenant-governor for British Columbia. This all but confirmed persistent reports that Defence Minister George Pearkes would resign from the cabinet to accept the post.

Are Sacred Cows Muzzling Canadians?

ST. ADELE, Que. (CP) — Sir Geoffrey Vickers, British social scientist, suggested Thursday night that Canadian and United States attitudes towards private enterprise are much like the Hindu attitudes to sacred cows.

He said freedom of speech, necessary to a democracy, does not exist in Canada and the U.S. as fully as in Great Britain.

Sir Geoffrey, chairman of the Mental Health Research Fund of Great Britain, told the Canadian Conference on Children it is possible in his country to discuss all problems, institutions, and topics without fear. That included discussion of communism and socialism.

Here, private enterprise and all that goes with it, including the assumption that private enterprise is separate from public responsibility, is "one of the untouchable orthodoxies."

"The sacred cows that need killing," he said, "are this idea that private enterprise needn't be socially responsible and the protection it has against criticism."

He said the situation was not as bad in Canada as in the U.S. but that the struggle between the West and Russia "has made any left-wing talk or strong criticism dangerously close to treachery in North America."

"You don't need secret police and concentration camps ... if people get the idea it doesn't pay to talk about certain things," he said.

An acquaintance of his, an executive from one of Canada's western provinces, had refused to comment on international affairs for fear he would jeopardize his chances of promotion.
